nationally for their work, and especially for their reasonable prices. On occasion, Germany and England have been seen on their customer's cars.

"I think hundreds of people in Eastern Kentucky especially are able to chew because of the Hendersons," a Mt. Vernon business man related. "They helped a lot of folks get teeth that otherwise would have had to gum it. They were always helpful."

About 10 years ago the Hendersons gave up specialized dental work, meaning pulling teeth, filling and began to make dentures exclusively.

"Earlier, there was plenty of work to do in all phases of dentistry here," Dr. Jack explained. "But more dentists came to the area and people began taking better care of their teeth. We liked making dentures, so we gave up the work that otherwise

He stressed "patient education" as the major change in dentistry over the years.

"People began brushing and going to the dentist regularly," he explained, "whereas in previous years they didn't go to the dentist until it was too late to repair their teeth."

Dr. Joe will obviously miss Jack, but he will carry on the business. He will continue to be helped by Charles Baker, who has been with the firm for 37 years.

Also along the way, Dr. Jack married Joyce R. Ritchie of Louisville. They have two sons, a designer of computer programs, and John of Danville, Va., a teacher. They have a grand daughter who is with her parents in Virginia.

Nineteen years ago, Dr. Jack and Joyce moved to Berea and have lived there since where both are active in their church, and she is active in various clubs and organizations.

They have no immediate plans for foreign travel. That could come later.

"We'll visit around," he said. "I'll probably make the office here in Mt. Vernon a loafing place. We could visit and take life easy. I also have an interest in computers, so I'll be working some at that."

When asked what the winners most about his brother, Dr. Joe quickly said, "his honesty."

"And he has stayed here most of his life and worked quietly and consistently," Dr. Joe said. "We'll miss him."

What of the immediate future? "They caught me," Dr. Jack said. "I've been called for jury duty in Madison Circuit Court."
