WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

U. S. and British Teamwork in Tunisia Forces Definite Shift of Nazi Strategy; Moscow-Bryansk Drive Ended; Russia; Fortresses Smash Jap Base at Rabaul

TUNISIA: Big Punch

Working as a team, Allied armies have thrown their big punch at the Axis in Tunisia.

With Allied planes flying over the eastern front, the Axis has been straining the enemy, the British 8th army opened a powerful assault against the Mareth line. Units of this army smashed through the Mareth line on the east side of the Axis positions and raced to within 20 miles of Gabes, a vital communications center for the enemy.

At the same time, Lieut. Gen. George Patton led his armored American forces into Matruh, which stands 20 miles from the Gabes coastal area. Patton's men have their positions despite the fierce counter-attacks of German dive bombers.

In the matter of fighting, it appeared as though the British were winning in the Mareth line. The British back up the coast, while the Americans were driving eastward to cut off the retreat from the front. Enemy troops are being driven back to the sea, where they are being captured by the British.

KISKA: Jap Air Base

The silence shrouding Japanese activities on Kiska island in the Aleutians was broken when America's stepped-up air offensive designed primarily to prevent the enemy from accomplishing the task of building an air field on the mountainous island base.

Almost three times as many raids were made in March as in February. The Japs are working 24 hours a day to construct a flight strip from which they can operate land planes. The construction of the field had been considered impossible, due to the rough nature of the land. Construction of the field would prevent the Japs from making their job of defending Kiska. From there, too, they might try to raid the American base in the Andreanoff Islands.

SILENT TREATMENT: For Argentina

When Vice President Wallace went no further into South America than to Chile, natives of Argentina began to really wake up to the fact that Washington was handing them a good dose of the "silent treatment." Comment on Wallace's trip became general throughout the country and the government went so far as to issue an official explanation that it had been learned in Washington that Wallace was visiting only the West coast of South America on this trip.

Argentina, man of food producing nation, received no mention in plans for the United Nations' forthcoming agricultural conference and this, too, excited wide discussion of America's policy toward the republic.

Citizens of Argentina realize that their government is being handled in a way because of its policy of failing to cast in completely with the United Nations in political and military action against the Axis.

DOWN UNDER: Subs Big Menace

With submarines operating in packs in the North Atlantic, signs pointed early to the opening of the Nazis spring offensive against Allied shipping to the European continent. That the Nazis were concentrating on such an offensive seemed to be borne out by the appointment of Karl Doenitz as commander-in-chief of the German fleet. Doenitz is a submarine specialist, who has organized the latest technique of operating U-boats in packs.

Thirty-two ships totaling over 200,000 tons were sunk in a recent convoy, the Nazis said. The Allies did not confirm the claim, but survivors from a late North Atlantic convoy said their losses were heavy, although partly compensated by damage to the attacking underwater hordes.

The Nazis are said to have 500 subs, with at least a third in action at one time. The practice of operating the subs in packs under one experienced commander, relieves the necessity for training individual commanders in the latest technique. U-boats attack their prey from both sides of the convoy.

Construction of a fast destroyer escort by the U.S. is expected to assist in running down subs. Volume production of these escorts will allow the navy to use them as the main force against U-boats that are in packs. Building also has been speeded on small auxiliary aircraft carriers to permit plans to take off at sea and maintain close patrol over convoys at all times.

RATIONING: Juggling Act

Almost all the items that go into the American market basket are now regulated under the rationing system and the job of juggling is to insure a proper diet as an important job for the housewife.

Juggling the dollars in the family grocery list is a heavy task. When meat, butter, cheese, shortening, lard and margarine joined the foods brought under the point system, the full force of the nation's dinner table. OPA indicated that with the 16 points allotted to each family...

RATION DATES

- April 1—Expiration date for Period 4 fuel-oil coupons.
April 23—Last valid date for stamp No. 26, good for one pound of sugar.
May 21—Last day when Coupon 5 in "A" gas ration book is valid.
May 23—Last day for use of stamp No. 12, good for five pounds of sugar.
June 25—Expiration date for stamp No. 17, good for one pair of shoes.
Sept. 30—Expiration date for Period 5 fuel-oil coupons.

- Each week during the first weeks for these items would provide approximately these amounts:
1. Meat—Slightly under two pounds.
2. Butter—About 3/4 pound.
3. Cheese—About 1 1/2 ounces.
4. Shortening—About 3 ounces.
5. Lard—About 3/4 pound.
6. Margarine—About 1 1/2 ounces.

Officials reported that in general the attitude to this almost complete rationing of foodstuffs was good. Most American realities it is pointed out, that rationing is the safest way to insure adequate supplies for the armed forces and our allies as well as insure equitable distribution of what is left for the home front.

VIEWPOINTS: Death, Dust, Ashes

A quiet confidence ran through Prime Minister Winston Churchill's speech to the Allies, warning the British that it may take years to crush Hitler "and his evil powers of evil into death, dust and ashes."

That was Churchill's warning to those people who believe that the war already is won. "It is not possible to share those sanguine hopes and my earnest advice to you is . . . not to take your eye off the ball even for a moment."

In a speech both grave and optimistic, Churchill asserted that after Germany is beaten the Allies will turn immediately to "punish the greedy, cruel empire of Japan." The prime minister proposed post-war councils of the Allies to insure peace, and drew a picture of social and economic post-war planning.

Unmistakably, another voice was heard—this one from Berlin. It was the voice of Adolf Hitler, rumored to be dead in the East. The fighting from months of seclusion, Hitler admitted that German soil has become a war zone, but boasted that the German people will overcome and that the German nation was moving toward "success until final victory."

WARNING:

Broadcasts from Tokyo are warning the Japanese people to expect a new wave of Japanese increasing submarine attacks upon shipping. A war review broadcast said "the enemy will continue to carry on our forces. The American plan in China will be further strengthened and therefore the enemy hopes to carry out raids over the sea. The enemy is using her submarines in the hope of destroying our supply lines. We must build more ships to replace our lost ships."

Washington Digest Results Justify Expenses Of Overseas Propaganda

Axis Has Employed Elaborate Means to Get Its Views Across to Neutral Nations; U. S. Must Use Press and Radio.

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, Union Trust Building, Washington, D. C.
The results of the "Washington Digest" survey of Axis propaganda efforts in neutral nations justify the expense of such efforts. The survey, conducted by the Office of War Information, held a press conference. He opened it with the remark that he was witnessing an Uncle Tom's Cabin without the Simon Legree. I didn't get the significance of the remark until David explained that Representative Tabor, who charged Mr. Davis with using the Office of War Information to disseminate propaganda for a fourth term, had been invited to share the conference but had other duties.

It was pointed out that the survey was to show how the more for the publication of propaganda was being done in a number of times was taken up on comparative costs of British, American and Axis propaganda efforts. If the OWI carried out present plan, it will be spending at the rate of 45 millions of dollars by the end of the year.

Three things struck me as a result of the conference: first, it is an even chance of obtaining the OWI's share of the investment is not worth quibbling about; second, since the OWI's share of the investment should not have and won't again, we either ought to take Davis' judgment of the OWI's share of the investment is not worth quibbling about; third, the OWI's share of the investment is not worth quibbling about; fourth, the OWI's share of the investment is not worth quibbling about.

In the first place, these publications under consideration are not in the nature of our own propaganda at home — though I believe they ought to be given some circulation in the United States. If it is understood, at least when it is compatible with the confidential nature of some of the means of distribution in enemy countries.

It is accepted as the duty and function for one political party to do all it can to discredit the leaders of the other party according to the rules of the game of politics — but as Davis quoted the Baltimore Sun, "it is not the duty of a political party to people abroad without affecting the political situation at home. That was done effectively in the case of Woodrow Wilson in the last war, his picture was worshipped all over Europe, as the symbol of the leader of a nation content to liberate them. But when he came home, he couldn't sell his program to the American people."

It is to be noted that the objective of the OWI was, whether it could show any results. Purpose one is a counter-attack. We know what German propaganda is doing, first in softening countries to be invaded; second, to keep neutral nations from siding with the Allies to fight for the Allies. The second purpose is the same as the first and more of it is not merely to nullify enemy effort but to make it ineffective. Just as America can win and is winning the war and that American victory will be a greater blessing to the world than respect than a Nazi victory would be.

'rench Reunion' Idea Has Interesting History

Reunion's history is as varied as its geography. According to 1843 by a Portuguese, Mascarenhas, who island bore his name until 1843 when it was renamed Reunion. Colonization began in 1664 at St. Paul by order of the direction of the French East India company. In 1763 the island reverted to the French government. When the Revolutionists came to power in France, the name of the island "Reunion," an idea that endured only to the rise of Napoleon. "The Bonaparte" then became the fashion. In 1816 the island was returned to the French government. Reunion has been administered as a department of France through a resident governor and consul general. Three delegates, one to the French senate, two to the National Assembly, traveled the 7,500 miles from Reunion to Paris to vote on interests in the French parliament. Their constituents are, for the most part, Frenchmen, British, Indians, and Chinese. Reunion, France has sometimes sent political exiles, notably the late Premier, Paul Painleve, to Reunion, in 1925.

Cassowaries Largest of Borneo's Odd Birds

Largest of the many strange birds of Borneo are the cassowaries, relatives of the ostrich and emu. Characteristic features are possession of a helmet and a long, powerful neck. Some six species of these flightless birds of the genus Casuarus occur in Australia, Borneo and neighboring islands. They are found in the forests and, while preferring a fruit, vegetable and rodent diet, have been known to attack man with the ostrich, they will eat almost anything.

They are five to six feet high with a black, highly-edged casque on the head, writes Edith M. Laing in Nature Magazine. Stout gray legs, powerful wings and a long, powerful neck. A bone-breaking kick and the long, tough, spiked web of the inner toe would be molars had better beware, too, of the spine-like quills which the rudimentary wings are equipped.

U. S. Steel Reports 1942 Production 23 Per Cent Greater Than World War I Peak

United States Steel Corporation's Annual Report for 1942 shows that production of a steel mill tonnage produced in 1942 was 23 per cent greater than in 1918, the year of World War I. It has just been announced that the steel industry's production in 1942 was 23 per cent greater than in 1918, the year of World War I. It has just been announced that the steel industry's production in 1942 was 23 per cent greater than in 1918, the year of World War I.

Chairman of the Board of Directors, in his report to the stockholders, stated that the corporation's forty-first annual report, issued in 1942, is the first to be published since the corporation's inception. The report is a comprehensive statement of the corporation's activities during the year 1942, and is a record of the corporation's progress during the year.

In Spain, it is said that in spite of strong handicaps—that is, the power of the Falangist party which has been effectively in power since the outbreak of the Spanish civil war—propaganda has curtailed this power, has swung many people from a pro-Falangist to a pro-Allied attitude. The persecution of the Catholic Church in Germany has been effectively in Spain.

The persecution of the Catholic Church in Germany has been effectively in Spain.

As I said before, I am much more than satisfied with the propaganda program that the OWI is doing. As to getting in puffs for the party in power, that is up to the party itself. It is not the duty of the OWI to get in puffs for the party in power, that is up to the party itself. It is not the duty of the OWI to get in puffs for the party in power, that is up to the party itself.

An interesting comparison of the use of the OWI's funds for the expansion of the OWI's program for the year 1942 is shown in the OWI's report for the year 1942. The OWI's investment to the use of Government funds for the OWI's program for the year 1942 is shown in the OWI's report for the year 1942.

Pyramidal Priests of Egypt The most obvious proof is to measure the length of the sun-undated year was to build pyramids sloped to the angle of the sun's elevation at noon, on the first day of the Egyptian spring season (or the summer season). The pyramids' pointed shadows would be cast on the ground, indicated the shadow end noon, when the "shortest" moment ended. On the day of the summer solstice, their three hundred and sixtieth day as leap day on February 29, in their secret keep leap years.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

'FISHY TREATY': Russia and Japan are still haggling over renewal of the 1942 fishing treaty, giving the United States a 20% share of the fishery off Siberia. The treaty is of military importance to Japan since it allows her to operate a weather station on the Kamchatka peninsula, which allows an accurate gauge of atmospheric conditions in the Bering Sea.

BRIEFS by Baukhage

China has received $157,000,000 of assistance from America. Seventy thousand letters dumped in the Tagu river when the Yangtze Clipper crashed recently at a sudden mass, but were salvaged. Most of the 100,000 American Red Cross food parcels for U. S. prisoners of war in enemy countries.

Horse in Need of Conditioning Now
Important Factors In Care of Horses

Since the horse has returned to stables for the duration at least, factors should start now if they want to put their animals into top condition before spring work begins. According to the department of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture, good feeding is essential, but consideration should also be given to methods of ridding horses of internal parasites. Bots live in the stomach, while roundworms, strongyles and other parasites live in the small and large intestine and, during certain stages of development, in other body tissues.

The best time to treat horses for parasites is during the winter months. Carbon disulfide is effective in ridding horses of bots and roundworms. Phenothiazine, the drug now so widely used for the control of internal parasites of sheep, is particularly effective in removing strongyles from the digestive tract. There is, however, an element of danger in the treatment of horses for parasites. Such matters as correct dosage and methods of administration as well as care given before and after treatment, require the skill and judgment of a veterinarian. A few farmers have used parasite control measures upon advice of a veterinarian for many years.

feet and removing sharp corners from the teeth, should be taken care of before horses are harnessed for tractor work. Black jack oak, when used at the same time the horses are given treatment for parasites.

Hardwoods
At the U. S. Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., new wood uses have been uncovered which have been adopted by industry. Among these are wood plastics, made by heating millwaste and acids which convert it into a molding powder for floor tiles and switchboard panels.
Corrugating board for shipping containers is made from chestnut chips discarded after tannin is extracted. Black jack oak and red gum may be substituted as chestnut wood disappears through disease.
Over 200 recent buildings have utilized glued and laminated structural beams and arches which are made from cheap, low-grade small-sized boards put together under pressure. Prefabricated houses are being marketed with panels for walls, floors and roofs made from plywood, glued to light frame.
Strong papers are being made for wrapping from maple, birch and aspen. Cellulose is made from pulped wood, treated chemically to convert it into jelly. This is filtered through narrow slits to become transparent sheets.
At a California lumber mill, red wood sawdust, chips and shavings are compacted under pressure into small logs sold for firebricks, dining cars and ship galleys. Shredded red-wood bark, known as Palco wool, is being marketed for insulation. When finished, it is a fluffy material resembling a mass of red hair.

More Farm Machinery
Success in meeting farm production goals for 1943 will be dependent to a great extent upon getting the last possible ounce of help from machinery. Every piece of power farm equipment should be given a general overhauling to make certain it will be ready to operate when needed. Efforts also should be made to make continuous work schedules for tools which will not be used full-time on the farms of their owners. All this will help our war effort.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Seed-bearing pods high up in rubber trees when ripe get off with an audible pop. The pods, about the size of a grape, are capable formations of gum which solidifies when ripe and throws the seed as far as 100 feet.

The French call rubber seedlings from an Indian farm meaning "weeping tree."

Ninety per cent of roadside trees that plague car owners can be avoided. Choking air pressures while tires are used before inflation will show up before the car's pressure is able to slow leaks.

Temperature, topography and types of roads as well as driving habit of owners account for wide variations in mileage from identical tires. These factors may account for a tire running in from twenty to twenty-five thousand miles of service in Chicago whereas in some localities it will run in 10,000.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Continual opening of the gas or electric oven door changes the temperature and is said to be one of the most common causes of baking disappointments.

Much of the difficulty in growing house plants comes from keeping them too warm. Try putting your plants in a cool corner of the room and watch them perk up.

House plants grow toward the sun. Turn them frequently so that they will not grow one-sided.

Keep the broiling pan in your oven as clean as any of your other kitchen utensils. After using it wash it in plenty of hot water and soapuds. Dry it perfectly before returning to the oven. Any moisture left on the pan may cause rust in the oven.

Our Navy Lunched 159 Fighting Ships in Year

During the 12 months following Pearl Harbor, the United States navy launched 159 fighting ships, or four times as many as the corresponding types sunk by enemy action, says Collier's. Among these new vessels were three battleships, six aircraft carriers, ten cruisers, 107 destroyers and 33 submarines, having a total estimated tonnage of 558,000.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By Gordon Wilson, Ph. D.

A Man of All Work
Yesterday I spoke in a small village to a group of farmer people. In order to find where the meeting was to be held, I stopped at small shop to inquire. I got so interested in the shop as a left-over that I almost failed to report for my speech. It was a genuine passing institution, the sort that inhabitants of small villages all over the South have. The barber easily recognizes. The outside window had "Barber Shop" painted in big letters, and in a way those letters told the truth. Under the sign, on a board, though, they did not tell the whole truth. In fact, it is easy for me to convey adequately what that shop contained.

To begin with, it was a barber shop, with a chair and all the apparatus there. There were also some shaving mugs on a rather ratty shelf, the kind of mug that had the name of the owner on it in fancy script. Some of the mugs were of iron long ago dead, just as the custom of keeping such mugs is dead and almost forgotten. There were also some typewriters, pretty badly worn and old-fashioned. They had some better days and plenty of them, but so had the barber.

On a table in one corner of the fairly large room were clocks that were in various stages of repair. Some of them were to have worked out of a story-book, for they were ancient and odd-looking. One clock, the prettiest of the lot, was inside a glass case, where all of its innards could be seen plainly, like having a glass window into one's internal organs. It was a pair of weights of the old fashion or springs at the newer, there was a quantity balanced contraption, that swung a staff, circle in one direction, paused an instant, and then swung back. I got so fascinated with this elaborate contraption that I forgot to listen to the yarns spun by the barber. All sorts of things were on the table: watches, varying from the big ones D. Scott wore in Mt. Vernon Saturday.

Little wrist watches that seemed so small to my eyes, were of time like people in hospitals, these time-keepers were of one direction, passed attention of the barber. I looked for a while for a gunk, but it suddenly occurred to me that the barber's loading guns were a bit out of date, even in such a shop as this.

But even these were not all that were on the table. A sort of collector of oddities: grease lamps, andirons, coal tongs, old pistols. A second-class museum could have been started with the contents of this shop. Given Mr. Henry Ford's money and this man's enthusiasm, every town could have such a place, where we could see what our ancestors were like.

There were so many things that you could hardly walk from the chair to the door without disturbing some of the objects and certainly some of the dust that had settled on them.

The whole thing reminded me of the dry-goods store that was still running in my town when I first came here. Ostensibly the merchant was selling dress goods and such like, but the whole rear third of the building was a veritable museum. The owner, already old when I first saw him, had a fondness for acquiring small objects suggestive of life in other parts of the world. He kept in touch with missionaries and went to strange lands and bought from them small idols, dolls, toilet articles, dresses, and table ware. Once a year he would bring in to our town and set out its museum specimens to this merchant; one of the items was a large diamond-backed rattlesnake skin which he had occupied a prominent position in the display of the store. I am sure that every village and town has had and some still has a place like these that I have described, but I fear that most of them are fast disappearing or else growing pretty ratty.

Read your ads and see us. We try to carry a complete line of nationally advertised goods.

Amazed At Results From Retonga He Says

Last Forty Pounds, Felt Weakened Almost To The Point of Exhaustion. Says Mr. Faulkner. Eats Plenty Now, Gains Fifteen Pounds. Thanks Retonga. Now, Gains Fifteen

MR. JOHN FAULKNER

Among the latest to come forward with his strong endorsement of Retonga is Mr. L. Faulkner, well known farm owner, stock raiser and merchant of Route 2, Mt. Sterling, Ky. Mr. Faulkner declares: "I don't believe anyone in Kentucky has suffered more than I have with the distress of indigestion. It looked as if I would never be able to eat solid food again. What food I forced myself to eat, I choked from head to foot. I just like it would cut my breath. Constipation forced me to take strong laxatives, and I ached from head to foot. Jumpy nerves kept me awake nights and I often felt so smothered I had to sit up nights to get my breath. I spent money and spent money, but felt it was doomed to continue suffering. "I will always be thankful for Retonga. From the very first bottle I could feel I had found the right medicine at last. My appetite is good, I eat anything and don't fear the gassy bloating and pain. All my indigestion is relieved. I don't have to take strong laxatives, and have regained fifteen pounds, feel strong and good about my work with my old time energy." Retonga is a purely herbal tonic combined with Vitamin B-1, and is intended to relieve such symptoms as suffered by Mr. Faulkner when due to loss of appetite, insufficient flow of gastric juices in the stomach, constipation, and Vitamin B-1 deficiency. Retonga may be obtained at Maggard Retail Drug Store Mt. Vernon, Ky.—Adv.

Joe doesn't work here any more...

Joe has a bigger job now... helping to defeat Hitler. Hirohito & Co. He's one of the 100 employees of this company now serving in the armed forces.

Joe will be back some day, we hope soon. But meanwhile we must carry on without him and his fellow employees in uniform. A few of them we have been able to replace with men of equal experience. Others we are having to train. Some we have not been able to replace at all. In wartime there are simply not so many skilled men like Joe to go around.

As time goes on, the manpower shortage will become more acute. So will shortages of material and equipment. As a result there may be times when our service is not quite as good as you, expect it to be—or as good as we would like to make it—but this is unavoidable in wartime and is true of all lines of business.

We're going to continue to do our best to keep your service at a high standard despite the difficulties of wartime operations. You can help by keeping your electrical equipment in good condition, by learning to replace your own fuses and by giving us time to answer your service calls on regular trips. Your cooperation and understanding will be appreciated and will help us serve you more efficiently.
