Carmichael receives just minimum sentence

Disqualified Commonwealth At-torney Ray Carmichael was ordered to report to federal prison March 1 by U.S. District Judge Karl Forester Friday, in the final sentencing phase of the prosecutor's conviction on at-

of the prosecutor's conviction on at-tempted extortion charges.

Carmichael, who has been sus-pended from practicing law but re-tains his title as chief prosecutor for Rockcastle, Lincoln and Pulaski counties and the $81,210 annual salary, will serve 27 months in the fed-eral penitentiary at Manchester, Forordered.

eral penitentiary at Manchester, For-ester ordered.

The judge told Carmichael that he would have given him the maximum sentence of 33 months had the 40-year-old Carmichael not had custody of two young children from a former marriage.

Carmichael's attorneys asked Forester to keep Carmichael out of prison should theyappeal the conviction but the judge didn't rule on that motion. Forester could, if he chooses, allow-Carmichael to remain free while his conviction is appealed.

Carmichael was convicted last fall of soliciting $100,000 for a political slush fund from a Somerset pawn shop owner with illegal fire-arms and gambling interests. Rodney. Adams, who lives in Lincoll County, children and the control county of th

RCHS council can reach no decision on new principal

The site based council at the Rockeastle County High School did not hire a principal last Wednesday night and it doesn't look like the regiong to do so anytime soon. Two of the council members, Debbie Cash and Tom Larkey said this week that a unanimous void to be the council simply could not be reached after interviews were conducted on Wednesday night.

The by-laws of the SBDM council at the school require that all five members of the council vote in favor of the new principal.

The Big Change in My Life Chapter 1

Chapter 1
I have had many changes in my life but the biggest change was when my husband, Mat, decided he had worked long enough at Proctor and Gamble in St. Bernard, Ohio and was worked long enough at Proctor and Gamble in St. Bernard, Chini and was turning in his resignation the next week. He had worked there throughout the depression years and due to the excessive soap dust he had breathed he developed soap dust poison which had severely affected his health. That was in the days before air purifying devices were used and factories such as Proctor and Camble were responsible for factory-related illnesses other than having heir own first aid doctor diagnose "skin rash", or stomach upset. No such thing as tests to see why the rash wouldn't heal, nor the reason for a raw-throat that seemed to go all the way through his body. With the help of his private doctor and his determination to heal himself, he went on a strictdiet of raw eggs and milk gently-stirred into an egg-nog several times. stirred into an egg-nog several times a day and survived on it for six months before he was then allowed to gradu-ate to baby food, then a normal diet which he was getting used to when we got married. Thank goodness for laws that have made the work place also a safe place for its employees and just compensation for what Mat had gone through. Through all his suffering he never missed a days work. I guess this experience was the deciding factor in his decision to move deciding factor in his decision to move back to the country where he would be his own boss. So, after two years of marriage he decided to move back to the foothills of Kentucky, a place located in the southern most corner of Rockeastle County.

The previous summer we bought a small pup tent and took our vacation there. We camped in the corner of the garden tended by the couple living in a little two room log cabin with a rickety porch across the front with a rickety porch across the front and a stove pipe extending through the roof instead of a sturdy chimney. So I did know about the lack of roads and the isolation of the area. It was on this camping trip, while lying on a camp mattress in the shade of brush surrounding the garden I felt the first movement of the baby I was carrying which would be born the following November 27, 1936. I was thrilled November 27, 1936, I was thrilled beyond words and could hardly wait to tell Mat who was at that time looking over the acres of woodland he had bought. So, Judy's life really began on what was to be later known as "The Farm."

My heart was heavy as I packed my five-month-old baby's belongings in the suit case for I knew I was taking my little girl away from my own folks who loved her so dearly and also knew I was leaving my and also knew I was leaving my the bright lights of thecity far behind and had no idea when I would ever see them again. There were tears and sad farewells as we tucked the baby in the space between us and pulled out for the hills of Kentucky our ruck loaded with all we had, the beautiful new furmiture, wedding gifts that had hardly been seen, the baby 's gifts and toys and her buggy that I was so proud of, plus the things needed for my new way of life. All of them had to wash in the same water for water was scarce and couldn't be thrown out with every use. We were moving to an undeveloped area of Rockcastle County, where Mat had previously bought several acres of land and wanted to several acres of land and wanted to prospect for coal on it. He also wanted to farm the cleared land, which there wasn't much of, clear more of it, then build our future home all before the next winter set in. By now the baby was tired and fredful. I was tired and the men were tired, tempers were getting short and I was beginning to doubt the sanity of such a move, irritation was begin-ning to take its toll on all of us when we saw a clearing ahead and knew we were getting close to what we thought was "HOME." Finally we puffed up to where an old log cabin sat and drew a sigh of relief. We were home. When the flashlights were turned on to the house the sign of relief then turned into a sickening UGH! Oh no. The building had been left by its last tenants worse then any pig pen any of us had ever seen. Our lantern and flash light showed piles of filthy form up paper, whiskey bottles, broken fruit jars, itn cans and anything else one could think of. Affirm Yourself

It is high time that you began to affirm yourself. By that I mean reminding yourself of your positive qualities and believing that you have hope for the future.

For a long time many Christians have shied away from affirming themselves because this seemed too much like PRIDE. PRIDE has been a fourletter word for Christianity for many in the price of the seven deadly sins. PRIDE after all "goeth before a fall."

Affirming yourself is not PRIDE. There is a healthy self-assurance that we need to intent chealthily with the' world. "Love your neighbor as you love yourself" asumes that self-love is a healthy part of life. We are instructed to love ourselves just as much as we love our neighbors.

Some do not love their neighbors enough. This column is not for them. This column is for those of you who really are not sure that you love yourselves.

Why do we not love ourselves? There are a variety of reasons. Some experienced abuse as children. The abuse told them that they were worthless. Others have various physical, mental or spiritual conditions that make it difficult for them to believe in themselves. Some have inherited a predisposition to depression and other illnesses that take away a sense of worth. Now is the time to begin affirming yourself as a person of worth. Here are some ideas you might want to ary:

1. Greet a co-worker or acquaintance to whom you normally would not speak because of your timidity. Begin to come out of that shell segin to come out of that shell excludes you.

2. Look in a mirror and say good things about yourself, such as "Ilove you," you are a good person: and "one thing I like about you is..."

3. Read something that affirms your sense of self. I recommend Don't sweat the Small Stuff or another book worth.

Sweat the Small Stuff or another book of your choosing. Your favorite magazine may also contain some affirming reading.

4. Spend as little time as possible

4. Spend as little time as possible with negative people. Perhaps you have been around them so long that you no longer realize how negative they are. On occasion you may have to endure these people, but do not let them get to you. Visualize yourself putting on a suit of armor (or for the illnesses that take away a sense of more modern among you) a force field. Let that armor or force field shield you from the shings and arrows of negative people.

5. Support positive movies that enhance your life. At one time in my life I wanted to see those dark, discouraging, philosophical movies that emphasized the bleakness of life. As I head toward my second half-century. I find myself wanting to see positive movies that affirm the good that is in life. I have seen enough of the evil myself and do not have to be reminded of it. I like those movies where the good guys and gals win!

where the good guys and gals win!

6. Find at least one positive person with whom you can spend some time This may not be as easy as it sounds, especially if you were born into a negative family or work with primarily negative people. Somewhere there is one who can share with you the positive things of life. Find him or her and do not let him go.

7. Spend some time with yourself

Do unto yourself as you would

"It Is Written"

would like to begin a study of Col 3 18-21, which deals with the nome the family.

Notice verse [8], "Wives, submit yourselves unto your our hurbands, as it is jit in the Lord." There are many passages that teach us that wives are to shimit and obe wheir husbands. Consider [3], 52-24, "Wives, submit your we've unto your work mobands, as note the lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, everas Christ is the head of the church; and he is the few of the bands. Therefore with exhibit is subject unto Christ, so the church is subject unto Christ, so the extrement the body. Therefore, wither church is subject unnot Prins, so let the wress but them one husbands me every 'fringe.' Now it is abundantly clear that there is a subordination, a submission that is obligated for wise. This word 'submit' comes from a military concept, timeans 'to rank under.' Ilike the fillustration on this point, marriage is like two people riding a horses, somebody has to ride in the front. Certainly there can and should be communication between a busband and wife, but somebody must make, the final decision. Notice Paul said that wives are to submit themselves to their husbands, not Momma's husband All her life is held green up listening and obeying Daddy, but now she is to obey her husband, not cut the apron strings! There is a limitation, to this submission, as it is fit in the Lord, that is, morally and spiritually right, we ought to obey rather that man concept. ought to obey rather than man concept

Dear Editor,

Tam having a problem that I hope I can find out if many others are having also. Homework is causing a lot of stress on our family. Here is an example: On Thursday, my daughter example: On Thursday, my daughter had an eye doctor's appointment at 4 p.m. in Richmond. I try to not take her out of school when possible. I picked up groceries and the baby at moms, we were home about 7 p.m. Now there's dinner, baths, teeth to floss and flouride (she has wires in the roof of her mouth) and homene root of ner mouth) and nome-work. It's soon 9 p.m., her beddime is 8:30 and 1 highly believe in plenty of rest, so I'm telling her to go to bed without homework and she is crying. Last week we had one orthodon-tist appointment (also in Richmond), one hospital visited, Wednesday I went to church (which I usually don't get to), one evening with the grandparents, etc.

It is also very important to me that mychildrenclean up after themselves and they have to help around the State Representative Danny Ford was sworn-in for the 1999-2000 term in the House of Representatives by his good friend and Chief Justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court, Joe Lambert. Ford represents the 80th Legislative District, including Lincoln, Rockcastle and portions of Pulaski counties. Later that same day, Rep. Ford's colleagues in the Republican Caucus: e-elected him as the House Minority Floor Leader by acclamation. This is Ford's bird term as leader of the House Republican Caucus:

Tobacco settlement reached

Tobacco state officials and tobacco company representatives have reached an agreed settlement of a $5.15 billion trust fund. The settle-ment was reached Thursday, Jan. 21, the second day of meetings in Raleigh.

N.C.
Gov. Paul Patton, Attorney Gen.
Ben Chandler and Agriculture Commissioner Billy Ray Smith were at the bargaining table, along with their counterparts from other tobaccogrowing states. This was the second set of meetings devoted to solving the trust fund issue.

Trust fund talks were stymied when R.J. Reynolds said the industry should help farmers by buying more leaf rather than by exablishing a fund. While Phillip Morris supported the fund, the other major companies—Brown & Williamson and Lorillard—were thought to be leaning toward agreement with R.J. Reynolds.

A conference call Wednesday from the tobacco-state governors to the president of R.J.R. Nabisco broke Trust fund talks were stymied the stalemate.

"It is thanks to the leadership of "It is thanks to the leadership of the governors and other elected offi-cials, and the support of legislators, tobacco group leaders, and Kentucky Farm Bureau that the trust fund is intact," said Commissioner Smith, a life-long tobacco farmer. "It was definitely a total team effort." "There are still details to be worked out, but we have the essentials in out, but we have the essentials in place in a signed agreement," said Smith. He said all details should be completed before Feb. 1, the date when Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman announces observed upon for the coming season.

One agreed change in the details is that the rust fund was originally set up to provide $5.15 billion to U.S. tobacco growers, which would be distributed in equal yearly amounts for a ten-year period. That has been changed to a 12-year pay out period. It is expected that Kentucky growers would receive about 30 percent of that total each year.

The purpose of the settlement is to compensate growers and tobacco-dependent communities for probable loss of tobacco income and to stabilize local economies of grower communities as tobacco income declines. munities as tobacco income declines It is the second phase of the massive settlement signed Nov. 23 between 46 states and the companies.

Commissioner Smith said during initial meetings in December that his goal was to make sure tobacco growers and their communities were not harmed by the settlement between the states and the tobacco companies. He said he now feels confident that has been done.

has been done.
"Approximately 25-30 percent of our farm income in Kentucky comes from tobacco. We couldn't afford to lose even a portion of this income due to the settlement between the companies and the states. The trust fund is essential to replace this lost revenue, "Smith said.

THE MOST COMMON COMPLAINT: YOUR SINUSES

ressure and soreness around your eyes and in your forehead. Colored nasal discharge and a high fever. Those are the signs that your sinuses are taking over your day.

An estimated 30 to 35 million Americans suffer from sinus infections according to the American Academy of Otolaryngology.

You have pairs of sinuses located above and below your eyes and near your nose. They can help control the temperature and the humidity of the air that enters your body. The nose and sinuses work together to produce mucus that picks up tiny dust particles and bacte ria, which travel down the back of the throat. Once the mucus reaches the stomach, the bacteria is destroyed by stomach acid.

Sinus problems occur when the openings into the sinuses become blocked due to an infection, irritant, smoke or allergy. Because of the blockage, pressure may "Sinus trouble usually is initially caused by a cold or virus," said Dr. Tony Arvin of Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center. "Prolonged problems may indicate infection, such as acute and chronic sinusitis

Acute sinusitis usually develops after a bad cold. Symptoms may include green or yellow nasal discharge; facial pressure around the cheeks, eyes and forehead; a high fever of 102 degrees or above; and upper molar tooth pain. Prolonged problems may require treatment with antibiotics and decongestants.

Chronic sinusitis sufferers usually have previously experienced one or several episodes of acute sinusitis that have not been cured. The common symptoms may include a small fever less than 101 degrees, nasal congestion. nosebleeds, headaches, chronic sore throat, cough, a decreased sense of smell and bad breath This condition may require a long-term treatment, usually prescribed by a doctor.

"It is important to consult with your physician in order to determine the best way to treat your symptoms," Dr. Arvin said

He recommends taking the following measures to help avoid future sinus trouble:

- When air is dry, consider using a humidifier: (Steam humidifiers may work better; use caution when used around children.)
- Try to avoid exposure to other people experiencing a cold or the flu;
- Avoid cigarette smoke;
- Avoid alcohol because it can cause swelling of the nasal passages; and
- Elevating head during sleep may assist in drainage.

Still working on keeping that New Year's resolution diet? Jill Stevens, director of dietary at Rockcastle Hospital and spiratory Care Center, recommends the following recipe to add to your new lowfat recipes.

Low-fat Chicken Salad

3 cups diced cooked chicken 1 (16 oz.) can of pineapple tidbits, well drained

1/2 cup shredded carrots 1 cup diced celery 3/4 cup light mayo 1/4 cup fat-free sour crea 1 tsp. curry powder (optional) 1 tsp. lemon juice

1 tsp. salt 6 cups torn, mixed salad gre

THE DO'S AND DON'TS FOR TREATING A BURN

any injuries are unavoidable and unexpected, which is usually the case with burns. Sometimes even the simplest of tasks, like taking dinner out of the oven, can lead to a severe burn. It's important to understand what causes burns and how to treat them, to avoid making the injury worse.

"Most people think of a burn being caused by a flame or intense heat, but burns can be caused by chemicals, radiant rays from the sun, artificial ultraviolet rays or extreme cold," said Dr. Kimberly Cornelius of Rockcastle Hospital and Respiratory Care Center.

Burns usually are classified into three degrees: first-degree, second-degree and third-degree burns. First-degree burns are characterized as red in appearance, the presence of blanches, parts of the skin that turn white to the touch, and damag only to the top layer of skin. A sunburn is a typical example of a first-degree burn.

Second-degree burns damage the entire first layer of skin and parts of the second layer. The appearance is almost the same as a first-degree burn with the addition of blistering and some areas appearing ivory in color. If the blistered area is larger than the size of your palm, medical attention should be sought.

Third-degree burns destroy the entire first and second layer of skin and give the skin a dark brown, leathery appearance. All third-degree burns require medical Burns can happen when you least suspect them. Dr. Cornelius recommends keeping the following guidelines posted in your house in case of an accident.

Thermal Burns (those caused by hor liquids, hot surfaces or open flames) Remove any jewelry, such as rings and watches that may become a hazard due to swelling.

- . Do not use butter or oil on a burn This only traps the heat inside the wound, making it worse.
- Cool the burn with cool water. Do not cool it with ice or extremely cold water. Cover the burn with a clean, sterile pad.
- Any significant electrical burn must be immediately seen and treated by a physician

Chemical Burns

Electrical Burns

Flush the infected area with water for at least 20 minutes. However, some pow dered chemicals are best removed by dusting them off the area. To know which treatment is best, check instructions on the packaging of the chemical

- Remove contaminated clothing. Be careful not to infect other areas of your body during removal.
- If the chemical infects the eye, immediately remove contacts if worn. In severe cases, keep the eve flushed with water until you can receive medical attention.
- Cover the burn with a clean, sterile pad.
- Do not use any other chemicals in an attempt to neutralize the infected area.

Greatest Generation by Tom Brokaw....In this superb book, Tom Brokaw goes out into America, to tell the stories of individual men and women, the story of a generation, America's citizen heroes and heroines who came of age during the Great Depression and the Second World War and went on to build modern America. This generation was united not only through a common purpose, but also common values—duty, honor, economy, courage, service, love of family and country and, above all, responsibility for oneself.

In this book, you wall heec group to whose everyally lives revealthow a generation persevered through war, and were trained by it, and then went es of individual men and generation persevered through war, and were trained by it, and then went on to create interesting and useful lives and the America we know to-

> Preventing Calf Scours

Why is beef cow nutrition important to preventing calf scours?

The majority of fetal growth occurs 30 - 60 days prior to calving. Since reproduction is so important to the cow, she will shift nutrition to be, developing calf. If adequate her developing calf. If adequate nutrition is not available, this shift will occur at the expense of the cow losing body weight. Low energy and low protein nutrient levels effect the strength of newborn calves. Weak calves do not have the ability to consume momas first milk or colostrum within the first 6 - 12 hours. Since colostrum is high in protein and energy, any nutrient shortage in the cow may affect the amount and quality she produces. Colostrum is the call's immunity to disease. Anything that affects the quality of colostrum or the amount that calves consume soon after birth, affects its consume soon after birth, affects its Research studies have looked at cows being fed low energy/low protein diest starting 100 days prote calving to see the affects from shifting to adequate nutrition 30 days prior to calving. Cows fed low energy/low protein rations for the last 100 days before calving had: 91% calves alive at birth, 81% alive at weaning; with 19% of death loss due to scours. For cows which were moved to adequate nutrient artions 30 days prior to calving, the start of the starting had: 14 days of days prior to calving, the starting had: 14 days; 10% diest at weaning; 0% death loss due to scours.

Low nutrition in the form of low Low nutrition in the form of low energy and low protein feeds are very common in fescue and grass hay. A recent Rations Balancing and Condition Scoring Workshop allowed 45 hay samples to be analyzed. All hays were adequate for dry cows prior to the last 60 days before earlying. However, only 3 hays which contained some type legumes could meet the cows nutrient needs just before calving. Of the hay samples, forty two would require supplemental feed just prior to calving and even more following calving due to much higher nutrient demands. means to be a good wife.

In the summer of 1968, Jo Becker ran out on the marriage and the life her parents wanted for her, and escaped for one beautiful, idylife year into a life that was bohemian and romantie. It was a time of limitless possibility, but it ended when she returned home to find her best friend lying dead in a pool of blood on the living room floor. This is an exquisitely suspenseful novel about how quickly and casually a marriage can quickly and casually a marriage can be destroyed and how a good wife can find herself placing all she holds
