Fiscal Court will participate in "Restore To Justice" program

Laurel County Detention Center met with the Rockcastle Fiscal Court Tuesday to make them aware of a new reentry program available to inmates with the aim of cutting the recividism rate of repeat offenders by 25%.

Carl Weaver, director of the reentry program for the Laurel County Detention Center, told the court that the program is mandated to be in effect by 2017.

Known as "Restore To Justice," the program aims to change the behavior of offenders, "The program does not allow them to stay in the victim mode but Representatives of the makes them accountable for their actions," Weaver told the court.

One of the representatives told the court that Laurel County Jail has a inmate population of 400 and out of that 400, 90 were chosen to participate in the reentry program. Of that 90, 49 completed several courses and have not returned to the Laurel Co. Jail or any other jail in the state or nationwide for a year.

In hard numbers, the court was told that the Laurel Co. Jail had realized a savings of $623,000 on housing inmates thus far

Brodhead Council proposes increase of water/sewer rates

By: Doug Ponder

The Brodhead council approved the first reading of an ordinance that will increase water and sewer rates for their customers.

The proposed ordinance will raise water and sewer rates on every level by six percent. For city customers, the base of $20.78 a month will increase to $22.02. The next 8,000 gallons of water. will increase from $6.27 per thousand to $6.64. 40,000 gallons of water or more will increase from $5.99 to $6.34. 50,000 gallons of water or more will increase from $5.63 to $5.96.

Customers outside the city limits will pay a base. rate of $29.01 for 2,000 gallons or less instead of the current $27.37 and $9.27 per thousand instead of $8.75 for the next 8,000 gallons used. Usage of 40,000 gallons of water or more will increase from

Medley swears in Lamb, Carpenter to council

At Monday night's regular meeting of the Livingston City Commission, Mayor Jason Medley swore in two re-elected members of the commission, Katha Carpenter and Leroy Lamb. Charlene Newcomb, another member elected in November, was absent from the meeting and the commission still has to appoint someone to fill a vacancy that exists. They have until February's meeting to make the appointment. As one of the first items of business, the commissioners approved the first reading of an ordinance regarding the sale of their electric franchise. A representative of KU, who presently holds the franchise, was at the meeting to lay out the process of renewing the franchise for a 20 year period. The city will receive a 3% franchise fee quarterly under the new franchise, up from 2.7% in the old franchise agreement.

The council also approved leasing the former

T.J.'s Journal by: Tonya J. Cook

Our Unwelcome Visitor DearJournal,

A day such as this isn't "fit for man nor beast", as they say. The temperature is hovering a little past the falling that is like ice water on a summer's day. There is a white, misty fog rising up to meet the low-lying clouds. It looks like something the British Isles would be proud to claim, In summation, you could say that the day is full of gloom and despair.

It's just the kind of day, however, that compels one to gather near the hearth, such as the one we have, and gaze into the flickering flames letting your mind wander wherever it may. I know this sounds very "lazy" of me but my ongoing radiation treatments have rendered me very weak and almost helpless. Even the least amount of effort exerted causes an exhaustion beyond description. The old eliché about not understanding another's situation until you've walked a mile in their shoes proves its worth to me daily. That alone requires hours of meditation. 🕭 🛊 🖫

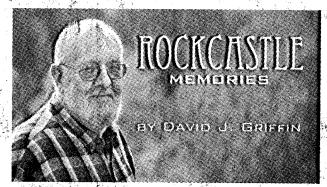

To compound folly with disaster, Stanley and I had an unwelcome visitor pay us a visit. We've come down with what is known as the common cold, It "arrived" mid-week and reached its peak this weekend. I got a significant lead in hosting our visitor Friday after returning from my treatment by retiring to the many comforts of the couch. I got a chill and was practically certain that I'd never be warm again even with an electric throw.

The weekend came along only to find us not any better and playing such exciting games of challenge such as who had the highest fever, who could go through his or her box of tissues. House, quicker or who could have the most consecutive sneezes. What excitement!

This has been the first weekend, possibly ever, that we haven't gotten a thing accomplished except watching old movies and breaking in our new rockers. I recently got Stanley a new one from Cracker Barrel. It is one of those JFK styles with the high back and it sits like a dream. He thought it was a subtle hint that he was over freezing mark, the clouds the hill, but I got it because are gray and thick with a rain of all the fuss he kicked up over moving a rocker from the living room to the bedroom. That rocker was rustic looking and fit in better with the cabin-style bed room and was only in the living room on a temporary basis. He said it was the only comfortable chair in the whole living room and that Satan himself must have designed the Victorian furniture we have. When people go to Hell, that must be where they have to sit he has declared. After about three days he decided I needed one, too, so he got me a Cracker Barrel rocker. They even match. I'll put some cushions in them and they will blend quite nicely, I believe. It sits high so older folks can get out of it easy and is pretty wide to allow for, well lets say, the expansion of our years. 'Never hurt my feelings...I've known I'm over the hill for a long time. Now we can grow old and gray together as we rock away our senior

Basketball Manager

For most of my life, I have been an avid high school and college basketball fan. My wife and I watch probably at least a dozen college games each week during the season. (We even purchased special sport packages from Dish Network to be able to keep up with our favorite teams, no matter where they are located in the United States.) A few days ago, one of the game commentators brought up the subject of how hard it is to be a basketball manager; he was referring to the amount of work that is involved. His remarks made me recall my youthful days as the manager of the 1960 Mt, Vernon High School Red Devil

I was enrolled in Coach Jack Laswell's health and physical education class. One day he called me up to his desk and said, "David Joe: I see that you are a very well organized young man, and I could certainly use your help as a manager for this year's varsity basketball team. Would you be interested in that job?" Of course, I replied with a resounding yes! When the basketball season began, Coach reminded me that I should attend all daily practices and all games, both home and away. That was fine with me - especially traveling with the team on the bus. This was going to be fun!

Since this opportunity had appeared as a result of Coach's notice of my organizational skills, I tried to be super organized. For example, every day I carried with me a roll of athletic tape in my pocket, along with ammonia capsules, an extra shoe string, a piece of chalk, and some Band Aids. That way when Coach needed one of those items, I could respond at once. I truly did try to do my best in my new position.

I was glad to be asked to be the manager of that particular team because I had several close friends who were players. Charles Bennett Farris and Howard Coffee often asked me to stay after practice so that I could rebound jump shots for them as they put in extra time. I also assisted them when they practiced free throws. Howard, Charles Bennett, and I played basketball at Jim Barton Nunnelley's outside court almost every weekend. Darrell Stepp and Lee Childress were classmates of mine, and we were together every day. Paul Daily, Paul Thomason, Jim Barton Nunnelley, and I often double-dated with one another on the weekends and even attended parties at Mason Gregory's house. I was willing and happy to be involved with the daily activities of this team - a team who, by the way, demon-on the court. There was at least one humorous event which I recall that happened at an away game of ours. I do not remember precisely where this happened, but I do remember that the school had a wooden floor. (Not the case for some gymnasiums back then.) While the game

Points East

By Ike Adams

I haven't yet gotten around to calling them up, but sometime this week I do intend to speak with the Garrard County Public Library because I just saw the Bookmobile parked beside the road less than half a mile from my house. I intend to see if I can talk them into jogging on down to Charlie Brown Road the next time they are out my way.

When we lived on Harmon's Lick, just outside Crab Orchard but still in Garrard County, the kids and I and sometimes Lorétta, patronized the Garrard County Bookmobile about every two weeks. The driver would simply pull off the road at the edge of Robert Collett's big pasture and sit down on her horn until she got our and the dogs' attention, at which point two adults and two kids would scurry around the house like a heard of stampeded buffalo searching for library books while kid number 3 would run the front porch frantically waving his or her arms to let the mobile librarian know that we would be on our way down the hill in just a minute. Then here we'd go, myself and the entourage of rug rats, a yellow Labrador retriever, a crippled Walker coon hound and ole Patch, the ever-faithful Yankee mongrel Loretta and the kids had raised from puppyhood in Ney Jersey before moving back to Kentucky. All three dogs would be loudly caterwauling and at least two kids screaming, "Wait for me! Wait for me!"

The fact that our librarian did not throw her van in gear and speed away before we got halfway down the hill is ample testament to that brave woman's cour-

I loved the fact that the bookmobile came to our place so regularly because the kids rightly thought it was a unique service and because it allowed me to share, with them, an experience that had played such an important role in my life when I was their age.

The bookmobile of my youth did not go to private residences because it was barely able to get to all the schools in Letcher County once a month. Before our small community schools were consolidated and children were bussed, on narrow, crooked roads. oftentimes more than twenty miles from their homes, we attended elementary school within walking distance of wherever we lived.

In my elementary school days (1955-1963) there were at least 25 schools in the county. Some of those schools were more than 20 miles distance from the county library. Getting to each school and allowing time to swap out borrowed books just once each month was more than a full time job for our mobile librarian. I figure it was one of those jobs you had to devoutly love if you were willing and able to stick with it for any length of time.

Legislation addressing the heroin epidemic passed unanimously on only the third day of session. Senate Bill 5, which was sponsored by Senator Chris McDaniel (and which I was proud to co-sponsor), provides for an additional $13.3 million for heroin treatment programs and requires increased reporting so that the effectiveness of the programs can be monitored. Other provisions will allow first responders to administer naloxone, a medication which can sometimes prevent death from a heroin overdose; will allow law enforcement to waive certain charges against suspects who voluntarily warn officers that they are carrying needles; and will require convicted trafficking offenders to serve 50 percent of their sentences before being eligible for parole.

Immediately upon the passage of the Heroin Bill, the Senate took up Senate Bill 1, or "right-to-work", legislation. After discussion on the floor, the Senate passed the bill, giving Kentucky another tool when recruiting industries to locate in the Commonwealth and create jobs. As the law stands now, Kentucky is often eliminated in the first round by a large majority of businesses because they will not set up or even consider locating in a state that is not right-to-work."

Friday, the Senate passed two more bills. The first of which being Senate Bill 2, which addresses a current imbalance of power regarding regulations that can be implemented by the executive branch without legislative oversight. This bill would establish a system for legislators to have oversight on executive administrative regulations and ensure that they are in keeping with Kentucky statutes. If itpasses this session, Kentucky voters will have the opportunity to cast their votes on the issue since it would be an amendment to the Kentucky constitution.

The other measure passed was Senate Bill 4, which would establish a face-to-face consultation with a physician, or "informed consent" between the patient and physician, take place before a medical procedure to perform an abortion can occur.

The family of Raymond Caldwell would like to say thanks to everyone for the kindness shown during his

To the ones who brought food, the folks at IGA, those that sent flowers and cards, our church family who helped serve food after the funeral, Bro. Tracy Valentine for his words of comfort and nephew Gary Keith Caldwell, Charles and Judith Sherrow who were with me from the beginning, those that were at the hospital and the ones that worked so hard trying to save him. We thank God for those men and women.

Thanks to Marvin and Judy Owens for the beautiful service and kindness shown to our family. Raymond had so many friends and for each of those. I am thankful. God bless each of you.

was in progress, a mouse darted out from somewhere and stopped right in the middle of the court. One of the officials halted the game with his whistle and then proceeded to stomp the rodent, which was now directly in front of our bench.

Coach Laswell immediately yelled, "David Joe, get a towel and clean that up!" I jumped up from the bench and collected the remains of the flattened rodent. I carried the mess (towel included) and threw it into a large trash container in the corner of the gym. I was, as we used to say, "Johnny on the spot" and proud of the quick response that I had made. However, when I returned to the bench, Coach blurted out, "Did you have to throw away the towel? Those things cost money!"

I simply pretended not to hear him because I certainly was not going to salvage the towel from that bloody mess! During all this time, the entire gym was in stitches laughing at the mouse escapade taking place on the court. I suppose that it was quite a show. (I don't recall whether either team was charged with the timeout – maybe it was the mouse itself.)
Well! I guess everyone has to be known for some thing. In that town at least, rodent janitor. In order to round out the depiction of our team, I should note that in addition to the above-mentioned players, Gary McClure and James Mink were also members of the team. Also, the cheerleaders for the '60 basketball team included: Sharon Owens, Jewell Anderkin, Janet Baker, Barbara Sowder, Billie Janice Arnold, and Nancy Helton. On occasion, if Coach Laswell would allow, the cheerleaders would lead the team in cheers all the way to the location of the home team. They were a very spirited group of gals.

I learned a lot about basketball and about life from Coach Laswell. Thankfully, we never met up with another mouse problem. And the memories of being a part of that team will always be special to me.

School, at least one student and sometimes two, from our three classrooms, were designated to select a month's worth of reading material for the rest of the 25 or so students in our respective rooms. From second grade on, I was usually one of those students. Because it was such an honor and privilege to be the book selector, the teachers had to at least make some attempt to spread it around lest they be accused of playing favorites. On those rare occasions when I was not allowed to visit the bookmobile, which had to park about two hundred yards in a wide spot below the school building, I would make a list of books I wanted and give it to whomever was chosen from my room.

Students were rarely ald bile books home from the follow the Senate bills: school overnight. They were kept on a special shelf along with a couple of dictionaries and a King James Bible. We read them between

However, adults were allowed come to the bookmobile and borrow for themselves/home use. I can remember talking Alene Adams, who lived straight across the road from the parking spot, and Little Steve Craft who lived just up the road, into checking out books that I could take home without telling the teachers. Well before eighth grade, I had read everything Zane Grey had written as well as all the Hardy Boys and Nancy Drew mysteries, all of Mark Twain's, James Fenimore Cooper's, Nathanial Hawthorne's Herman Melville's, Ernest Hemingway's and numerous other's books, thanks entirely to the good old Letcher County Bookmo-

I thought it strange to discover that, upon reaching high school, we were assigned books like Huckleberry Finn, Moby Dick and The Red Badge of Courage, everybody in the class had not already read them at least half a dozen times. Imagine my surprise at spending half a semester in a 300 level college course, dissecting Huck Finn, and discovering that well over two thirds of the class had never read it at least once.

from this program. County Attorney Billy Reynolds voiced his problem with the program as that of not being able to keep offenders in jail long enough to go through the program, because of the third party bonding out practices of district judges. "If we can't get our judges to go along with it we can't keep them in jail long enough to work on their behavior," Reynolds said. "Rockcastle County ranks 7th in the state for turning inmates loose the fastest, Laurel county ranks 130th," he pointed out.

County Judge/Executive Doug Bishop told the court that he saw this program as "an attempt to try something different, If we can offer them a program that can help them, I'm all for that program. What we've been doing is not working."

There is no cost to the county for the program. It will be headed locally by Kim Couch Gibson who runs the UNITE rehabilitation voucher program for the court. She will have to have a specialized training course for the reentry program at a cost of $250.

The court approved participation in the program.

During the meeting, the court received an excess fees check from County Clerk Danetta Allen for $43,411 which is the estimated amount due from her 2014 budget. Allen said that once everything was finalized for last year, the court would probably receive an additional $7,000 or so in excess fees.

The court also approved a requested resolution presented by Allen approving the sale of recycled license plates made into bird houses from her office. Allen said the bird houses were made by the Letcher County Court Clerk and sold for $20. Proceeds go to veterans homes across the state and is part of the Help A Vet Every Day program.

She also received approval to change her gold maintenance plan for election machines, which covers only hair of her machines, to a silver plan which will provide for maintenance of all the machines every other year.

The court set the maximum salary for Allen's office at $200,000 plus $15,000 for matching retirement and $20,000 for matching social security benefits. Allen's budget for 2015 was presented and approved. The budget show s expected receipts of $2,393,900 and expected expenses of $2,353,415 with estimated excess fees of $40,484.

The court also approved the purchase of a three bay cooler for use by County Coroner Marvin Owens for $4,949. The cooler will be housed in the county's part of the Mt. Vernon Fire Department. Should the city decided to purchase the county's share of the building, as has been requested by the county so that the funds can be applied to building a new storage shed at the emergency operations center in the industrial park, other arrangements will be

In other action, the court, on the recommendation of Bishop, rehired Coy Cromer as road department supervisor for two years at the same rate of pay and reappointed James Renner as PRIDE Coordinator.

The court also voted to give road department employee Harry Potter back pay from May of 2014, when he began working as a mechanic instead of an equipment operator. The backpay will amount to 85c an hour for the time period. The court also approved paying road workers for an unscheduled holiday on January 2nd which was granted workers at the road department by former county judge/executive Buzz Carloftis.

In their last item of business, the court transferred $50,000 from the occupational tax fund to the general fund for transfer to the detention center.

"Schools"

Isaacs said the district administration will likely make a decision this summer about Rockcastle County Schools participating in the Community Eligibility Provision program this summer. The school district did not participate in the CEP program for this school year and Isaacs said that they will use this school year to determine the financial commitment that is needed for participation.

The CEP is a federal program that allows high poverty schools to offer both breakfast and lunch to all students regardless of their parents' or guardians' income. The federal program requires that at least forty percent of the students at a school must already be certified to receive federal money from a government program for free meals.

Isaacs said that more information is still being accumulated to determine if the CDE program is feasible for the district. She said just because a school qualifies doesn't mean it is financially feasible for the district to participate in the program as each district has to pay the difference of those students who don't receive funding from a federal program for free meals.

The Superintendent's personnel action report showed two classified hirings of Trent Clark as RCHS Girls' Golf Head . Coach and Kathy Dees as a bus driver.

Certified substitute teacher hirings were: Sandy Whitaker, Jerri Lynn Smith and Amber Bobo. Classified substitute bus monitor hirings were Zella Graves and Megan Elam. Classified substitute instructional assistant hirings were Darla-Reams-Moore, Amanda Booth and Stephen Carrera.

Resignations were Nick Williams as RCHS Assistant Baseball Coach and Nell Cromer as RCMS Health Services Assistant. Lisa Reams retired as a RES Special Education Teacher. There were also volunteer hirings of David Perkins and Jamie Isaacs as assistant boys' baseball coaches and Chriss Kirby as an assistant softball coach.

$6.90 to $7.10 per thousand and 50,000 gallons of wafer or more will increase from $5.78 to $6.12 per thousand.

The base sewer rate for customers using 2,000 gallons or less will be $25.64 instead of $24.19. For customers using over 2,000 gallons, the sewer rate will be $4.61 per thousand instead of $4.35. Brodhead Clerk Becky Bussell pointed out to the council that the combined monthly "base rate" for city water and sewer customers will increase to $47.66 which is a $2.69 per month increase from $44.97.

Bussell said the water and sewer rate increase is a result of several things, including the city's rate study by the GRW engineering firm in the summer of 2013. The rate study called for rate increases in 2013, 2014, 2015 and 2016. The rate study further stated that if the city failed to increase rates they would have an estimated net revenue loss of $17,184 in 2015, $20,150 in 2016 and $23,206 in 2017.

Other variables, according to the rate study, causing the rate increase included: projected increased operation and maintenance expenses of 3 percent each year, the 36% increase from Mt. Vernon Waterworks in September 2012 and repayment of a loan from Rural Development that was used to construct a new storage tank in 2009.

Bussell said the rate increase is also the result of a grant/loan from the Kentucky Infrastructure Authority. The City of Brodhead was recently approved for the grant/loan from the KIA to repair the city's sewer system. The city will receive $1.2 million with $600,000 of the funding as a grant and the other $600,000 as a loan with a three quarter percent interest rate.

"The interest rate can be deceiving because when it's applied to that size of loan it can be a big amount." Bussell said.

The funding of the KIA grant/loan is designed to be used for sewer line and manhole replacements, waste water pumping station replacement, construction of wet water flow equalization at the treatment plant, city hall lift station maintenance and a new state mandated influent meter that has to be installed at the city's sewer plant.

The grant/loan funding will also include the costs of doubling the city's 150,000 gallons a day sewer plant processing capacity to 300,000 gallons a day.

Mayor Walter Cash said the repairs to the sewer system, water plant and lines are necessary and something that can't be put off.

'We don't have no choice," Mayor Cash said. "We have to do it."

After no further discussion on the issue, the council unanimously approved

Winter-Blooming Witch Hazels

Rare it is to see shrubbery in bloom in the winter, especially in the North. The witch bazels are up to the job. For the impact of blooms in winter, consider this shrub in your land-

The common witchhazel, hammamelis virginiana, is a native to eastern U.S. and blooms in October or November. Not unusual to see yellow leaves still clinging as yellow blooms appear. The vernal witchhazel is also native to America, and blooms in February or March. Then, the Japanese, hammamelis Japonica and the Chinese, hammamelis mollis, offer additional options. The vernal witchhazel has probably the most colorful blooms, but so does the Japanese. The common and Chinese have the best aroma as you walk by them.

Sort of like the forsythia, the witchhazel takes up quite a bit of space and does best in a large yard where it can naturalize. But it can be sheared (will not bloom as well, just like a forsythia that is sheared does not bloom as well) and can also be limbed up like a crepe myrtle into a small tree.

Generally this group of shrubs will do well from zones 4 through 8. Then, we can also add the Persian parrotia tree with it's late winter carmine colored blooms. And in zones 6b through 9 the Loropetalums offer lovely carmine or pale yellow flowers, but not much in the way of smell. Many of the loropetalums have burgundy leaves as a wonderful bonus to the March flowers.

Folks have trouble describing the sweet spicy scent of the witchhazels in bloom. The fall blooming common witchhazel begins the season and the Chinese wraps it up in March. (This all depends on what part of the country you are in, climate affects bloom times.) One thing is certain, there is likely a witch hazel that will appeal to your likes. There have been numerous hybrids of the Japanese and Chinese witchhazels which offer so many options with differences in blossoms, colors, sizes and so forth.

The Persian parrotia tree is also a member of the witchhazel family. It is a hardy tree getting perhaps the size of a redbud

The loropetalum is a Chinese relative to the witchhazels. It's charming blooms in February or March vary from carmine to pale yellow. Many cultivars have burgundy leaves today, this was a major improvement in this plant in the last 20 years or so, as old shrubs in this family all had green foliage and were in much less demand in the landscape. Loropetalum is for zones 6b and southward.

This is a lovely plant, in any of it's forms. If you have trouble locating it, there are quite a few mail order nurseries who will ship it to you either bare rooted or in a small pot.

If you see shrub all showy in the middle of winter, might it be a witchhazel? You can combine members of the witch hazel family with hellebores, daffodils, grape hyacinths, anemones and crocus for a wonderful statement in the winter or early spring landscape.

Now 3-1 in district play

Lady Rockets win two; lose to PC

The Rockcastle Lady Rockets lost their first district game of the season last Friday night to the Pulaski County Lady Maroons 46-35. They are

3-1 in district play.
The Lady Rockets had a hard time getting their offense going in the game, scoring in single digits for three quarters. They were down 24-11 at the half and 44-17 at the third quarter stop. The Lady Maroons substituted freely in the fourth and the Rockets were able to score 18 for the final 46-35.

Saturday, the girls hosted Barbourville and came away a big winner 67-15.

Eight Lady Rockets got in the scoring column, led by Kelley with 15; Saylor scored 11; Albright got 10 as did junior Morgan Renner, who returned to the lineup after an absence of several weeks due to a knee injury; McKinney and senior Amelia Eversole each scored 8; sophomore Emme Barker got 4 and Newland 2.

Monday night, the girls hosted East Jessamine and came away with a 50-48 win on a buzzer-beating layup by Barker.

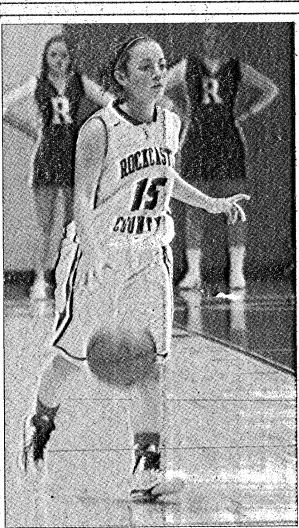

The game went back and forth with the Rockets down by one 15-14 at the end of the first quarter and up by four at half time 27-23. The margin was one for the Rockets 36-35 at the third quarter stop and the score was tied at 48 all when Barker through East Jessamine's defense for the last second layup and the 50-48 win.

Kelley again led the scoring for her team with 19; Renner got 12; Eversole 7; Saylor 6; Barker 4 and McKinney

The Lady Rockets are now 9-10 on the season and will host Casey County Friday night in a doubleheader district game with the boys and will travel to Wayne County next Monday night for a girls/boys doubleheader.

Kentucky Afield Outdoors

Proper spooling of spinning and baitcasting reels

This is the first of a series of articles detailing essential outdoor skills to learn before the warm winds of spring arrive in Kentucky.

FRANKFORT, Ky. - A family member bought you a nice spinning outfit for Christmas. Despite the cold, your desire to cast the new rod into water propels you to a local Fishing in Neighborhoods (FINs) lake to try to fool some winter rainbow trout.

Dutifully spooling on some fresh 4-pound test monofilament, you cast a red and silver in-line spinner a few times. As you move to a new spot and shoot a cast, you hear a sound similar to a flushing covey of quail and see a ball of spaghetti moving up the rod.

You now have a bird's nest of epic proportions, requiring cutting off the mess, pulling out the loops and retying the lure. You curse the brand of line you bought. , 🦠

In all likelihood, it isn't the line's fault. Properly loading fishing line onto a spinning or baitcasting reel is a skill many anglers take for granted, but often do incorrectly, greatly reducing the line's performance. Incorrect line loading often causes tremendous line twist, the main culprit behind bird's nests.

For spinning reels, first make sure the line you've selected matches the capacities of the reel. These capacities are always labeled on the side of the reel's spool. Don't load 10pound test line onto a reel designed to accept lines from 2- to 6-pound test.

Begin by placing the filler spool onto a table or floor with the label facing up. Run the tag end of the line through the stripper guide - the largest guide closest to the reel - and to the reel. Open the reel's bail and wrap the line twice around the middle of the reel spool, tie an overhand knot and tighten. Follow up with another overhand knot and clip the line about 1/4-inch from the knot. Make sure to clip the tag line, not the main line leading back to the filler spool.

Reel some line onto the spool and stop. Lower the rod toward the filler spool. If the line begins to jump and twist, flip the filler spool over, placing the label down. Sometimes, the direction the line was spun on the filler spool at the factory and the direction the spinning reel places line on the spool are not in synchronization, which causes enormous line twist. Flipping the filler spool allevi-ates this problem. If the line comes off the spool in big loose coils and doesn't twist, keep reeling until you fill the spool to the thickness of a nickel from the spool lip.

Another way to load the spool involves a helper. Have the helper run a wooden pencil through the hole provided in the center of the filler spool housing. Run the line through the stripper guide and tie on to the reel spool. Ask the helper to hold the spool and pencil assembly perpendicular to the reel, similar to the way a wheel rotates on an axle, and apply gentle pressure to the filler spool with their fingers.

The line must come off the top of the filler spool toward the reel, not the bottom, or it incurs line twist.

Resist the temptation to overfill a spinning reel's spool. If you've ever opened the bail on a spinning reel and line shot off it like a top, then you've witnessed the results of overfilling the spool. You can lose half a spool of line from twists, tangles and bird's nests from overfilling a spinning reel.

Manually closing the bail of a spinning reel with your hand after making a cast is one of the best ways to keep line twist at bay while fishing. Each time you close the bail by turning the reel handle, you apply twist to the line. Over a day of fishing, these twists add up and produce loops and tangles that eventually lead to a mess. After a few fishing trips, manually closing the bail becomes second nature.

To fill baitcasting reels, run the line from the filler spool through the guide closest to the reel and through the line guide of the baitcasting reel to the spool. You can simply run the line through the holes in the ported spools found on most baitcasting reels today and start reeling. Or, secure the line to the spool with an arbor knot. Both techniques work. The pencil through spool with a helper technique works best on baitcasting reels. Again, make sure the line comes off the top of the filler spool, not the bottom. You can also do it by yourself by placing the filler spool on a table with the label up and checking for twist, but the pencil through the spool method works much better for baitcasters.

Fill the spool to within a 1/16-inch of the rim and, again, resist the impulse to overfill the reel.

Don't let line problems stemming from improper loading ruin a day of fishing. Following these simple procedures will achieve the best casting distance for your spinning and baitcasting reels, keep tangles at bay, and extend the life of your line.

Rockets now 7-10 on season; 1-3 in district

By: Doug Ponder The Rockcastle Rockets boys varsity basketball team is now 7-10 on the season and 1-3 in district play after a 63-56 loss to Pulaski County and a 74-52 win over East Jessamine.

The Rockets travelled to Somerset last Friday night to square off against the Pulaski County Maroons in a district matchup. The Rockets were looking for a win in order to improve their record heading into the district tournament.

Pulaski County came out firing on all cylinders in the first half of the game, leading 20-14 at the end of the first quarter and 33-22 at halftime.

The Rockets mounted a comeback after halftime and scored 21 points in the third quarter to cut the Maroons' lead to 49-43 at the end of the third. But the Maroons held on and put the game away in the fourth quarter with a final score of 63-56.

The Rockets were led in scoring by sophomore Lucas Gentry with 22 sophomore points, Carson Noble was next with 15, senior Sam Pensol had 12, junior Dylan Rowe scored 5 and sophomore John Cornelius got 2 points.

The Rockets rebounded with an impressive 74-52 win against the East Jessamine Jaguars on Monday night.

East Jessamine led the Rockets 11-10 at the end of the first quarter but the Rockets dominated the Jaguars for the remainder of the game, leading 31-19 at the half.

After halftime the third quarter and finished the game off in the fourth quarter with a final score of 74-52.

The Rockets were once again led in scoring by Gentry with 22 points, Pensol was next with 17 points, senior Dakota Hasty and Noble scored 9 points each, senior Blake Mullins had 6, Cornelius got 5 and Rowe, senior Ethan Mattingly and senior Carter Blanton were all credited with 2 points each.

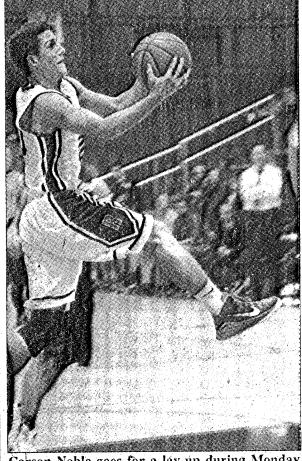

The Rockets next game is this Friday night when they take on the Casey County Rebels at home. Tip-off for the game is at 7:45 p.m.

The Rockets and the Rebels are both 1-3 in district play. Rockets Head Coach Benny Blanton said this Friday night's game is a needed win for the Rockets.

"We just have Casey County and Pulaski County left on our regular season district schedule," Blanton said. "We are all evenly matched in our district but Pulaski County is slightly stronger and bigger. We need a win against Casey County in order to get that higher seed in the district tournament and avoid having to play Pulaski County in the opening game."

Blanton went on to say that in order to beat Casey County this Friday night, the Rockets need to be more aggressive on defense with the best bearing bearing. "We have been playing great on offense but we need to do better on defense," Blanton said. "We need more than just Rockets led the Panthers one player getting re-50-36 at the end of the bounds."

Carson Noble goes for a lay-up during Monday night's 74-52 win against East Jessamine. The Rockets next game is this Friday night at home when they take on the Casey County Rebels at 7:45 p.m.

January is Cervical Cancer Health Awareness Month

Power to prevent cervical ply online for the Rogers cancer is in our hands

Deaths from cervical is easy, user friendly, and cancer, once a leading cause of cancer death among women in the United States, have dropped dramatically in the past several decades, but more can and should be done to prevent the disease. During Cervical Health Awareness Month (January), the American Cancer Society is highlighting the fact that the great majority of the estimated 12,000 cases and 4,000 deaths from cervical cancers could be prevented with full use of vaccination regular screening, and treatment.

The death rate from cervical cancer has dropped by more than 50% over the past 30 years, thanks in large part to the Pap test. Still, in 2012 about one in ten women ages 21 to 65 had not been screened for cervical cancer in the past five years. "That adds up to eight million women in the U.S. who should be screened who have not been," said Richard C. Wender, M.D., chief cancer control officer for the American Cancer Society. given to girls ages 11 to 12. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and other groups recommend routine vaccination for boys, as well. The vaccine is not perfect; women who get the HPV vaccine still need to get regular screening for cervical cancer. Uninsured women or those without a regular health care provider are significantly less likely to receive cervical cancer screening. Still, studies show about seven in ten women who had not been screened in the previous five years had a regular doctor and health insurance.

The American Cancer Society recommends women aged 30 to 65 have a human papillomavirus (HPV) test with their Pap test (called "co-testing") every 5 years as the "preferred" screening strategy. Women between ages 21 and 29 should have a Pap test every three years.

Application deadline nearing for Robinson Leaders Program

Program at the University of Kentucky is currently accepting applications for its high school leadership program through Tuesday, Jan. 20, at 4:30 p.m.

To be eligible, applicants must be in the freshman year of high school, reside in one of the 29 eastern Kentucky counties in the Robinson Scholars service area, and be first generation students with an interest in obtaining a 4-year college degree. First generation students are those whose parents or legal guardians do not hold 4-year college degrees.

Those selected to be Robinson Leaders are eligible to participate free of charge in college preparation activities, leadership development, cultural trips, and summer camps provided by the Robinson Scholars Program. Those accepted will also be eligible to apply for the Robinson Scholarship, which is a full scholarship to the University of Ken-

Applicants are selected based on factors such as academic achievement, participation in community service, extracurricular activities, personal enrichment, and need for financial aid. Some scoring preference is also given to low income students but low income status is not necessary if students meet the criteria of high school freshman status, first generation, and residence in the service region.

About 87 Robinson Leaders will be chosen from the 29-county service region for the 2015 cohort. Of the 87 Leaders chosen, 29 students (one from each county) will be awarded a Robinson Scholarship at the conclusion of the junior year of high school.

Robinson Leaders are also eligible for other finan-

Shell elected to fill newly created leadership position

Republicans Kentucky's House of Representatives on Tuesday elected Representative Jonathan Shell to fill the newly created leadership position of Caucus Campaign Chairman.

Shell, who is entering his second term as a state legislator, represents the 71st District which includes :-Garrard, Rockcastle, and a portion of Madison counties. At age 27, he is the youngest member of the Kentucky General Assembly.

The position will place Shell front and center of Kentucky Republicans. 2016 efforts to finally capture a majority in the State House. The election cycle has already earned attention from incoming U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell who met with Kentucky House Republicans in early December.

Democrats have controlled the chamber since 1921. Their present majority is slim with 54 seats to? 46 Republicans.

An aggressive candidate recruitment and fundraising strategy that will be utilized sooner, rather than right before the 2016 filing deadline, will be the top political priority for the caucus according to Shell,

Kentucky fares well in new drug report

A new national report shows Kentucky fares well compared to other states in the number of patients potentially misusing non-prescribed medications or abusing illegal drugs.

Kentucky, "which has long been known as an epicenter of the national prescription drug epidemic," was "noticeably absent" from the top 10 worst performing states in each of three categories studied, according to the report, released December 17 by Ameritox, a leader in medication monitoring solutions.

Urine samples were collected from more than 400,000 patients to examine three specific areas of concern: (1) patients who were prescribed drugs but those drugs weren't found; (2) evidence of drugs for which there was no prescription; and (3) the presence of one or more illicit drugs.

"Kentucky showed modest improvements in each of the three categories between 2012 and 2014," the research report stated. By comparison, overall more patients on chronic opioid therapy tested positive for a drug not prescribed by their doctor or for an illicit drug than two years ago.

"Treating pain is a major challenge in our society, and so is the potential for misuse of prescription medications and the abuse of illicit drugs," said Scott Walton, CEO of Ameritox. "We need a concerted, dynamic approach - one that uses monitoring and additional insights at the clinical level - to address this problem."

The report showed that · Kentucky:

• Ranked 36th for "prescribed drug not found" at 23.7% of samples.

• Ranked 35th for "nonprescribed drug found" at 30.3% of samples.

• Ranked 22nd for "one or more illicit drugs found" at 11.9% of samples. Marijuana (78%), cocaine (16.7%) and heroin (4.6%) were the most common substances detected among the samples testing positive.

Van Ingram, executive director of the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy, said the report indicates state efforts to address this national epidemic are working.

"The strategies we have implemented in Kentucky are having a positive effect," Ingram said. "Cautious prescribing, use of prescription monitoring systems and drug disposal are just some of the strategies that are having an impact on Kentucky's prescription drug problems." There were 980 Kentucky resident drug overdose deaths in 2013, a 5% decrease from 1,032 deaths in 2012, according to the Kentucky Safety and Alignment Network. Drugs and medications - over-thecounter, prescription drugs and illicit drugs - were the

Kentucky students can win $1,500 toward college and $500 for their school

Kentucky students in grades K-6 have the opportunity to win $1,500 toward college and $500 for their school in the "Dream" Out Loud Challenge." Students are invited to submit an original drawing, poem, essay or video answering the question: "How will I change the world after I go to college?"

The annual challenge, sponsored by the Kentucky Education Savings Plan Trust (KESPT), is intended to encourage Kentucky families to start saving and planning for higher education with their chil-

The contest has two categories: drawing or video and essay or poem. One winner will be chosen from each category in grades K-1, grades 2-3 and grades 4-6. The winning students will receive a $1,500 KESPT college savings account, and their schools will win $500. The contest runs from Jan, 19 through March 20. Entries must be postmarked by March 20 and received by March 25.

'This is the sixth year we have sponsored the Dream Out Loud Challenge. In the past five years, we received nearly 8,000 entries from students all over Kentucky." KESPT administrator David Lawhorn said. "This has been a great way to promote saving early for college because the challenge starts family discussions about how college can help children make their dreams come true."

KESPT is Kentucky's official college savings plan. It is administered by the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority and managed by TIAA-CREF Tuition Financing. The plan helps parents, grandparents and others invest in a child's future college education.

Your land is threatened.

Oil and gas companies are currently working to lease mineral rights across our region for a never before seen wave of industrial shale oil and gas development. These oil and gas companies want to tap into a shale layer about two miles deep, called the Rogersville Shale, which until recently was considered inaccessible. Our home and way of life are under threat.

Through a technology known as hydraulic fracturing, or "fracking," oil and gas companies anticipate a huge payout for them while we suffer the consequences. The results of the fracking boom in places like Pennsylvania and West Virginia have been so devastating that the state of New York recently banned fracking to protect the health and livelihoods of its citizens from the disregard and deep pockets of the gas industry. There is no rush to sign a lease. Don't be pressured or sweet-talked by the land men. Take the time to learn for yourself about the risks of fracking.

Things you should know:

- Fracking works by injecting millions of gallons of water, chemicals, and sand into wells where chemical explosions break apart the bedrock to release natural gas under extremely high pressure. Fracking is not the same as conventional gas drilling or the nitrogen fracking that Kentuckians are familiar with...
- When industry representatives say that fracking uses mostly just water, they leave out the fact that the chemicals added to the water during the fracking process are extremely toxic at any level. Chemicals commonly used include benzene, xylene, and toluene, as well as other chemicals known to cause cancers, neurological problems, and other health issues.2
- Oil and gas companies typically will not release information on the chemicals they use and store on site, putting community members and our first responders in great danger when increasingly frequent accidents like explosions, blowouts, and leaks happen.³⁴
- People who live close to fracking wells have been found to experience higher levels of illness and birth defects. 56
- Landowners are often misled about royalties, and receive much less money than promised because of accounting tricks used by the gas industry.7 Most of the profits made from fracking will leave the community,
- Fracking produces large amounts of wastewater polluted with brine, toxic chemicals, hydrocarbons (oil and gas byproducts), and even radio-activity that has been known to pollute drinking water wells and springs, streams, and land. Our water treatment facilities cannot handle this type of waste.
- Despite industry claims, fracking wells have been found to leak gas and chemicals, including benzene and formaldehyde, into groundwater and the air at levels far above those set by the federal government to protect human health. ¹⁰ Springs and well water can be ruined, and the air polluted with high levels of smog. ¹¹
- Living near fracking wells can drastically reduce the value of your property. 12
- Industrial development from fracking has been associated with significant increases in crime, fatal traffic accidents, and rent costs.1
- While industry representatives may say that fracking is highly regulated, the truth is that fracking is exempt from many parts of the laws enacted to keep people safe, including the Safe Drinking Water Act, the Clean Air Act, and public right-to-know provisions of the Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know Act. 14
- Fracking has been directly linked to earthquakes.15 The Kentucky River, Irvine Paint-Creek and Rockcastle River Fault zones are all nearby, as is the Bluegrass Army Depot, which houses deadly nerve gas.

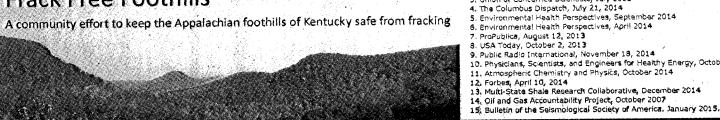

A community meeting hosted by Frack Free Foothills will be held Tuesday, January 27 from 6:30-8:30 at the Acton Folk Center in Berea. The Folk Center is located on 212 W Jefferson St. This meeting will include a presentation by Bill Hughes of Wetzel County, WV. Mr. Hughes has been documenting the problems of fracking in West Virginia, and his presentation will intypical problems experienced by communities because of fracking. The forum will include time for people to speak

Times are hard, and promises of big payouts sound nice. But when you sign a lease, you are allowing the gas industry to bring these burdens to your neighbors, your family, and your community. Learn more. Talk to your neighbors. Help keep our part of Kentucky beautiful and safe. Visit www.frackfreefoothills.net for more information.

Thinking About Cleaning Your Carpet! Some things to think about...

What is the best way to clean my carpet, should I use the old technology of steam cleaning or the new technology of dry foam?

Test results from Consumer Report, 2008.

Option 1: Steam Cleaning-How does it work? A. Steam Cleaners saturate your carpet and floor pad with hot (150* degree) soapy water containing lye and beach to help dissolve stains. B. After your carpet reaches its maximum saturation point the solution is then extracted by means of a commercial shop vacuum. The results: Removes less than 20% of the soil from the carpet driving the remainder down deeper into the carpet fibers. The lye/bleach solution used by steam cleaners to dissolve stains fades carpet colors Drying time is 1 to 5 days depending on the carpet texture. As a result of the water saturation, carpet fibers harden and the floor pad remains damp, which promotes bacteria growth and mildewing, causing carpet threads to rot, shorting the life of your carpet. Carpet manufactures recommend that you do not steam clean carpets

Option 2: Dry Foam-How does it work?

C. Carpet fibers are agitated with carpet combs to separate the fibers loosening dirt particles, which are then dry cleaned with an industrial strength vacuum.

D. The carpet is then shampooed with horse hair brushes using Dry-Foam lather, a solution that contains six different cleaners and fabric softener, color brightener, deodorizer, disinfectant, crystalline agent, scotch guard, & degreaser. Does not contain lye or bleach, E. Carpet fibers are then groomed to fluff up worn walk areas to give a uniform look to the carpet.

The results: Removes over 90% of carpet soil. Rejuvenates and brightens colors and patterns of carpets. Drying times is less than 2 hours. Floor pads remain dry-Fabric Softener makes carpets soft again-Promoting the life of the carpet. Carpet manufacturers recommend Dry Foam to clean Carpets.
