The Mount Vernon and Livingston Fire Departments, along with the Kentucky State Police, the Rockcastle County Sheriff's office and EMS workers, responded to a fatality early Wednesday morning in Livingston. A bulldozer operator, Billy Ray Moore, 63 of Orlando, was removing the dozer from the trailer when the track slipped off the edge of the trailer and rolled over killing him instantly. The accident occurred near the bridge on Highway 490.

Bicycle and pedestrian project receives local support

By: Mike French Dr. John Fox, Director of the Friends of Boone Trace, has been making rounds in ten cities and five counties, in an effort to garner support for his applications to the State Bicycle and Pedestrian Program.

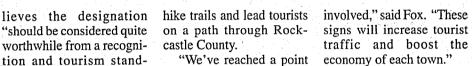

The primary goal of these requests is to receive a resolution in support of participation in the State Bicycle and Pedestrian Program and to begin the planning process for biking and hiking trails through Rockcastle County.

He is also beginning the process of applying to begin planning from the state and national Scenic Byway Program to receive that designation. Fox says he be"should be considered quite worthwhile from a recognition and tourism standpoint."

According to Fox, this designation will provide signage throughout the county designating bike and

City working to avoid local water pump emergency

One of the two pumps is broken

By: Mike French Members of the Mount Vernon City Council dealt with a potential emergency situation during Monday night's regular monthly meeting.

The water supplied to Mount Vernon and other cities from Mount Vernon's Water Department, is provided by two pumps. One of which is broken.

'This is not an emergency, but is our effort to avoid one," said Mayor Mike Bryant.

According to Frank Baker, Water Plant Supervisor, the two pumps are meant to run alternatively which means one pump runs while the other is being maintained. However, since one of the pumps is broken, the other pump is running full time.

"If something did happen to this one pump that is left, we would be in a very bad situation," said Baker.

In fact, Mayor Bryant said the issue must be dealt with immediately. "This is normally the type of thing we bid out to have the pump repaired. But it is crucial that we get this other pump back up and running immediately," he said.

For this reason, council members agreed to forego the bidding process and hire workers immediately to rebuild the pump.

City Administrator Josh Bray said the existing two pumps are very old and there are exceptions in regulations that allow the city to forego the bidding process in emergency situations.

"Those two pumps were installed before I was born and not having a back up pump could be very serious for everyone," he said.

However, Bray said the cost of a new pump could be as high as a quarter of a mil-

City Council accepts asphalt bid, hears department reports

By: Mike French The Mount Vernon City Council held its regular scheduled meeting Monday night.

Among the actions taken was the review and approval of the monthly financial reports.

Members of the council

Saylor files as write-in candidate

The deadline to file as a candidate to be on the November General Election ballot as a candidate for Mount Vernon City Council was Tuesday, August 9.

Only five candidates filed before the deadline. Six candidates were needed to constitute a full slate for the council. However, according to the county clerk's incumbernt Office, councilmember Sharon Saylor has now filed as a write-in candidate. Her name will not appear on the ballot, since she missed the deadline and voters will have to write her name in on the ballot.

Besides Saylor, other candidates for Mount Vernon City Council are: Jackie Weaver, Wayne Bullock, Jamie Bryant, Shelly Lewis and Clifford Mullins.

also approved the use of ATS Construction for upcoming blacktop and resurfacing work planned this year. ATS Construction is formerly Elmo Greer and Sons, LLC.

The bid is the only one received by the city and prices are lower than last year.

"There is some good news this year for the city. Since the price of petroleum is down, our costs are down for asphalt base and surface," said Mayor Mike Bryant.

In fact, last year the cost of asphalt base was $82 per ton while this year's cost is only $61. Last year's cost for asphalt surface was also $82 but this year is $63.

City Administrator Josh Bray reported that the city earns around $10,000 per month from the Lake Linville complex from boat rentals and sales and dock fees

Councilmember Jamie Bryant once again brought up the issue of the new nuisance ordinance and asked about several properties that are still in need of repair or clean up.

Bray and Project Administrator Chrystal Rush told Bryant that those property owners have been contacted and are in the process of Mount Vernon Police Chief Brian Carter and Assistant Chief Joe Rush stand beside marijuana plants found in the city Monday afternoon. Officers discovered the plants in an abandoned lot on Terry Street and, after inspecting the lot for booby traps, Officer Rush cut the plants with a machete and helped tie them to the top of Carter's police vehicle. Several plants were discovered and destroyed and, according to officials, several thousand dollars worth of marijuana was off the streets.

We stepped out the back door Sunday morning and were greeted with a quiet, soft meow.

I live out in the county on an old, tiny back road. Someone had dropped off a kitten and he (although I have no clue if it's a he or a she) was headed straight for us in the back yard.

He was so hungry his ribs were showing and he was moving kind of slow.

So, into the house we went pouring cool water and opening a can of tuna. That was one hungry cat.

I found a big container and filled it with sand and stuck it in the laundry room so he would have a place to go when nature called and kept feeding him until he seemed full.

He is very well behaved and spends a lot of time in my lap and had clearly been an inside cat until someone dumped him.

He spent most of the night in Dena's lap sleeping and this morning (an hour before my alarm) he gently put his paw on my nose to wake me and direct me to his empty food bowl.

So, it looks like we have an addition to the family. Today, Dena is going to buy cat food and knowing her, when I get home there will be cat toys, and cat climbing thingys, a cat bed, balls of twine and a sign that says "Home of Ben-Jo the cat!"

It has been a good couple of weeks around my house because the Olympics have taken the media attention away from the Trump and the crook.

It's good to watch something for awhile that isn't spinning words and manipulating facts and twisting truths so that sheep will fall for it. But the Olympics sure put me in my place this week.

As I mentioned on Facebook, I felt so inadaquate watching people my foot down real fast about six times before I'm done.

goodneess Thank there's a potty in there and now I just sit on that to dry my feet.

I also was confused about the "fencing" competition.

I was looking forward to that. A good old fashioned Olympic sport that my father would have done very well in.

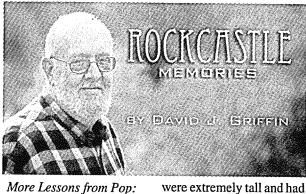

But, when it came on, no one was digging post holes or stretching barbed wire. I expected to see old guys in bibbed overalls seeing who was best with a post hole digger.

That wasn't what they were doing at all. Back in my neck of the woods, what they were doing, we used to call a "knife fight." Fencing is done with barbed wire. Knife fights are two guys with knives. Duh.

Anyway, that's a joke. I did know what fencing is but I have to say, I do wish some of the competitions had a more practical purpose in real life. Stuff that people really do.

I love watching the floor gymnastics but I have to say, I've never once seen the practical use for it. I'm certain my dad never had a sudden need to be in the tobacco field and start flip flopping and jumping and landing and twisting in mid air. It's cool to watch, but the Hazards of Picking Corn

One of my neighbors recently told me that his Silver Queen corn was tasseling and should be ready to harvest soon. He asked if I needed a few ears, and my reply was a resounding, "Yes!" The thought of picking fresh corn reminded me of my grandfather's (Pop) garden.

As I have explained any number of times before, I lived as a youngster with my grandparents and with my mother (Bee) on a small hilltop farm just outside of Mt. Vernon. Pop loved fresh corn and always planted several rows. I closely observed his work in the garden and learned many interesting facts about gardening and harvesting of fresh vegetables and a variety of fruits.

One August day in the early 50's, Pop was getting ready to pick his corn and asked me if I wanted to learn about what he was doing. I always loved being around Pop, so I trotted off with him into the garden. He explained that we were going to pick enough "roastneers" to last our family for the weekend. I loved corn on the cob and was excited about what we were going to do. As we approached the garden, I noticed that the stalks were extremely tall and had morning glories growing everywhere. Pop detailed to me how he allowed those particular flowers to grow with his corn because it helped with the pollination. Sounded right to me!

Pop then took me aside and provided several warnings before we entered the corn rows, including, "Look out for packsaddles!" Then he added, "They are small green caterpillars, and they hurt like the dickens if they sting you." That, of course, immediately got me to raise my level of attention.

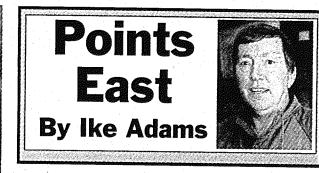

He explained that the edges of the long, dangling leaves were sharp and would cut your bare skin. Then he stopped what he was doing, just long enough for me to run into the house to get my denim longsleeved shirt.

When I returned, he added the third caution for me to watch for in the corn patch: the morning glories would be full of honey bees so, "Watch out!"

I followed along behind Pop in a single row of the new corn. I was holding a wooden basket in which he placed the corn as he carefully removed the ears. At that moment, I realized why Pop always dressed as he did while spending time in the garden. He wore longsleeved shirts, bib overalls, high top shoes, and (always) a straw hat. Of course, that now made perfect sense to me after learning of the hazards to working in the gar-

I remember us slowly filling that basket. Once, we stopped, and he took the

After losing my sweet corn crop, last year to a pair of two-legged thieves and the year before that to a hoard of starlings, I was so happy to actually harvest a crop this year that I didn't begrudge the 2 dozen or so ears I lost to a four legged critter.

And yes I do know that starlings have two legs but unless they wore size 9 and size 12 hiking shoes they were not the thieves who robbed me of some 1500 ears. The thieves who got me last year left tracks and the imprints measured out to the shoe sizes or at least a reasonable approximation thereof. I still get angry just thinking about it.

The critter or critters that got to me this year did pull the ears off the stalks, then pulled the shucks back and chewed the corn off the cobs in much the same way most humans do it and then left the residue lying at the edge of our yard and around the perimeter of the corn patch. I'd bet a lot of money that it was raccoons.

I suspect it was more than one because the first night they struck they left 8 cobs/shucks-attached in the aforementioned places. I doubt that one coon would have eaten all 8 ears.

The corn was not quite as filled out as we like it so I left the porch light on for a few nights and they didn't come back. Believe me, I checked the patch every day and did not find any new evidence of thievery.

After leaving the porch light burning for 5 or 6 days, we deemed the corn to be fit and table ready and I picked a few dozen ears late one 🕆 afternoon.

That night the critters apparently overcame their. fear of the porch light, or maybe they saw me harvesting the crop and decided they'd better be getting while the getting was good. In any event they struck again and this time they left behind the residue of more than a dozen ears.

That afternoon I finished picking everything except a few ears that werestill not ready, mostly on stalks that were a week behind the others because I'd planted them in random spots where the first seeds had not sprouted. The critters and I shared, pretty much equally, what was left over the next 10 days or so.

That was nearly a month ago. Now fast forward to current events.

I had not see hide nor hair of the garden pests until last Saturday. In the meantime we had been enjoying both ripe and/or fried green tomatoes or both every day and sharing them with family and friends. I have 20 tomato plants made up of 6 varieties in the main garden as well as half a dozen in big containers several hundred feet from the garden and isolated so that they can't cross pollinate because I want to save seeds.

Thanks to a few hours of hard work performed by my brother, Andy, the garden plants are all caged so that they stand erect and most of the fruit is at least 20 inches above ground. A lot of it is more than 30 inches.

I say "is", but I should say "was," because when I went out, last Sunday, to check on the progress of of over four hundred, and it just seemed the right thing to do. The first year we had the gathering, it was so popular wnd well-recieved we decided right then and there to meet again at the same time and place the next year. This is in addition to the five-year reunions that are rather formal and held at the country club or some such venue with nice catered food and dancing. Our fortieth reunion will be in 2018.

We have a fifty-year reunion coming up in 2028. We have a time capsule with a bottle of wine in it with letters from each of our class present at the 25th anniversary. On that special occasion, we will open that capsule, read the letters, and drink the wine. I'm the keeper of the time capsule.

I suppose when the capsule is opened it will be a bittersweet affair. I'm sure there will be a lot of smiles, laughs, and memories recalled. Then there will be the sadness and tears for the lives that will have passed, those no longer with us. Sadly, some have met that fate already.

Every year at the gathering, we learn of various deaths during the past year. We have a memorial for those who have passed and "graduated" from this earthly realm every year. This year, we had an empty chair with flowers adorning it, a single white pillar candle flickering in the summer night, and a poem expressing our loss.

This year we made the usual group picture, mixed and mingled, talked of the old days and the chapters of our lives that have passed: our jobs, our kids, grandkids, our homes, our parents' passing or having to be cared for now. Then there are our health issues and the ravages of time.

several dozen tomatoes that had been in various stages of ripeness on Friday, I discovered, much to my dismay, that the critters had struck again. I counted 43 stems and shoulders still attached to the vines but the bottom 3/4s had been gnawed off. In addition, more than 20 mostly-eaten fruits were scattered about where the culprits had pulled them off the vine and

So there went my carefully laid plans to set up a roadside tomato stand in downtown Paint Lick and earn enough money to buy a new battery put a set of new tires on my old pickup.

I may yet be able to get enough produce off the container plants to pay for the battery, but I am not holding my breath.

Even though I have them located almost directly unagain I wonder why swimming 1/100 of a second faster than the other person is so useful.

If you fall in the pond and you need that 1/100th of a second to keep from der our booger light as folks on Blair Branch used to refer the security lights mounted on utility poles, the raccoons may decide that the Giant Syrians I have growing there are worth whatever risks the have to take to get at them.

drowning, I'd say you aren't gonna make it.

I can sort of understand the pole vaulting thing. I've seen some creeks I needed to cross and that skill would have been handy. But I've yet to find that big, soft airbag on the other side of the creek to land on.

I wish there was a nail driving competition. Or a lawn mowing contest. Or even a storm door installing race. You know, helpful stuff.

The most useful things I've seen is the foot races. There are bears around here and running faster than the guy beside you can come in very handy.

Anyway, I'm enjoying watching these amazing athletes. We can all be very proud of them.

time to show me how to sip nectar from the flowers of the morning glories. He was full of interesting knowledge like that, and I was, once again, deeply impressed with what all he knew.

Just as we were getting ready to leave the corn patch, I was stung by a "packsaddle," boy, was Pop right. It was horrible! By the time that we reached the house, I had a huge blister on the back of my hand. Bee carefully washed the sting and then placed a towel with ice inside directly on my wound. She also gave me two baby aspirin. In about a half hour, the stinging was better, and the swelling was going down. I think that was my only connection with the dreaded packsaddle. It was the only one I ever needed. I still remember how bad that hurt.

That night for dinner we had country ham, fried potatoes, corn on the cob, fresh tomatoes and cucumbers, and corn bread. I enjoyed the meal for several reasons, including my lessons learned that day from my wise grandfather. I think maybe that I loved him more than most members of my family. He taught me everything, and he always loved me no matter what.

Neal Thorton is a good man who has witnessed and guided nearly twenty-five persons to become born again Christians during the last three years. He loves people and is very concerned with their salvation. I love him, his wife Ashley, and their family as I do my church.

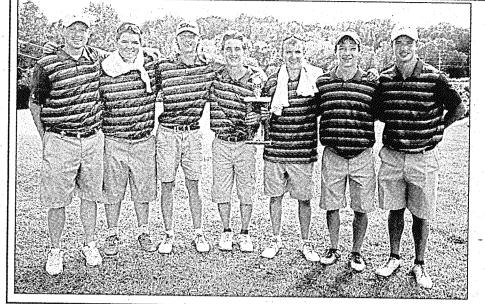

Years ago when a female high school student came into my classroom at the Ky VoTech school in Mt. Vernon, something seemed amiss about her, but there was no time to talk with her that day. The next time she came to my class, I observed the same pattern of body language- -and knew. She was exhibiting signs of physical abuse.

I was a coward that day. By law, a teacher is legally required to report such things to authorities even if it is only a suspicion. The gutlessness came from the fact that if reported, justification of my actions would be necessary. How does one effectively explain the ability to perceive such a complicated subject matter by merely observing body language? I decided to report to social services anonymously.

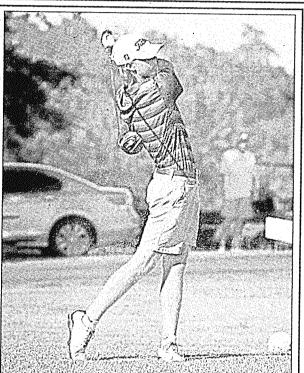

The brave child self-reported the next morning. She doesn't know this part of the story for which I ask her forgiveness. This is when I swore to myself to never again be a coward but to stand up for whatever reason or however difficult.

The Rockcastle Rockets boys' golf team continues to build on their strong season. The Rockets came in 2nd place this past weekend at the Powell County Invitational. The Rockets shot an impressive 305 missing out on 1st place to Montgomery County by 4 shots. Pictured are Coach Jake Woodall, Will Isaacs. Cade Burdette, Zach Baker, Grant Isaacs, Thomas Burdette, and John Cornelius.

Cade Burdette continues to play well for the Rockets this season. This past weekend, Cade finished with a 3 over par 75. Cade has put together 3 top 8 finishes to start the season and looks to carry his strong play into the conference regular season.

Grant Isaacs shot an 87 this past weekend and continues to build on his success from last season for the Rockets.

Kentucky Afield Outdoors Deer season looks promising

Many archery hunters in Kentucky will spend the last long weekend of summer getting an early jump on fall.

Kentucky's 2016-17 deer season kicks off the first Saturday in September with the start of the 136-day archery season. Anticipation has been building for months.

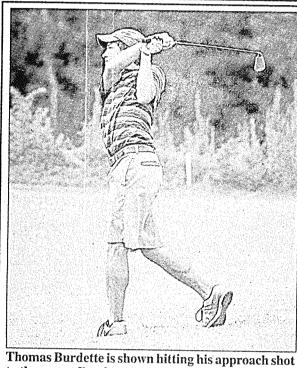

"Everything right now season," said Gabe Jenkins. deer program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. That is welcome news following a string of record harvests. Hunters in Kentucky established a new benchmark last season by taking more than 155,000 deer. It was the third record harvest in the past four seasons and included 55 bucks from 40 counties documented by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife that met the Boone and Crockett Club's minimum entry score for its awards book. "Our deer hunting in Kentucky is better than it's ever been," said Steve Beam, wildlife division director for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We're harvesting record numbers of deer and our production of large-antlered bucks is completely incredible." A state believed to hold fewer than 1,000 whitetailed deer a century ago now is considered one of the nation's premier hunting destinations. The latest herd estimate - derived from harvest and age structure data - pegged the statewide population at more than 820,000 after the 2015-16 hunting season and before fawning this spring. "We've really hit the scene in the past 10 years because of our quality white-tail," Jenkins said. "That's a product of good management, good habitat and being diligent about what's being put on the landscape. With that, we still have to be good stewards." The archery season is just one facet. Crossbow, muzzleloader and youth deer hunting opportunities are part of the overall season framework. But it is the modern gun deer season in November that drives the harvest, accounting for 70 percent of the total harvest last season. "We've been setting archery records nearly every year and every month, so we're seeing more interest in archery hunting," Jenkins said. "But we're still a modern gun-dominated state and weather is the biggest key in that."

The modern gun season opens statewide Nov. 12, 2016, and spans 16 consecutive days in Zones 1 and 2 and 10 consecutive days in points toward another good Zones 3 and 4. There are 43 counties assigned Zone 1 status after the addition of Hardin and Webster counties this season. In another zone change, Marion County is now a Zone 2 county.

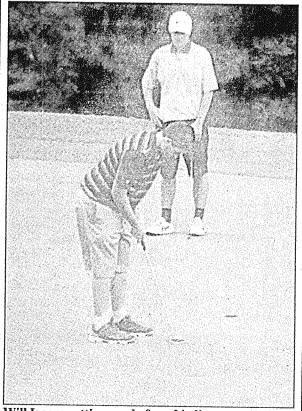

John Cornelius won the Powell County Invitational this past weekend shooting an impressive 3 under par 69. Cornelius now has three top four finishes on the season and continues to prove why he is one of the top golfers in the region.

to the green. Burdette has played well for the Rockets this season and continues to be a crucial part of the success the team is having. Burdette shot an 85 this past weekend.

Classes scheduled in Smart Phone Basics

Zach Baker has had a great start to the season for the Rockets. He shot 81 this past weekend and has an 83 tournament average to start the season.

Will Isaacs getting ready for a birdie putt on hole #8 at Beechfork. Isaacs has had'an impressive start to the season averaging an 83 in tournament play and recorded an 80 this past weekend.

Herd health assessments are underway and results are not yet available from the annual statewide mast survey. Hunters should take

BOBBY BURTON'S SHEPHERD PIE

Bobby taught me to make these when he was my stepfather-married to my mother. The other two recipes came from Bobby's mother.

1 tablespoon vegetable or canola oil

1 onion, chopped

1 pound ground beef

1 envelope dry onion soup mix

1 bag (1 pound) frozen mixed vegetables

1 to 2 cups mashed potatoes, cold or warm

1 cup shredded cheddar cheese

Preheat oven to 350°. Heat a 9-inch iron skillet (or an ovenproof one) on medium-high heat. Add oil. When oil is hot, add onions. Cook for about 2 minutes. and add ground beef. Cook until no pink remains. Stir in the dry onion soup mix. Remove from heat. Place frozen mixed vegetables in a 2-quart casserole dish, cover with ground beef. Spread mashed potatoes over ground beef. Bake in ovenfor 35 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and bake 5 more minutes or until cheese melts. Serve.

> GRANNY BURTON'S MASHED POTATO SALAD

4 or 5 potatoes 1 egg

1/2 onion, chopped 1/3 cup sweet pickles 1/2 cup Miracle Whip® Salt and pepper to taste Peel and dice the potatoes into a pan. Cover with cold water and bring to boil. Reduce heat to gently simmer for 20.to 25 minutes or until potatoes are tender. Remove from heat and drain. Put back into pan and place on burner that was used to cook potatoes. Leave turned off. Crack one fresh egg into potatoes. Immediately, beat the egg and potatoes together with an electric mixer. The heat from the potatoes will cook the egg. Add rest of ingredients and stir with spoon to mix well. More or less Miracle Whip® may be needed, depending on how creamy you want the salad. Serve warm. GRANNY B'S TOMATO

DUMPLINGS

Since I don't like dumplings, I asked Judy if she remembered how to make these. I knew Rhonda liked them, but didn't realize Judy did. Here is her answer. 1 quart canned tomatoes 1/2 cup sugar

1 tube refrigerated biscuits (or your own biscuit dough) Bring tomatoes and sugar to gentle boil. Quarter each biscuit and drop gently into boiling tomatoes. Let cook about 10 minutes or until dumplings are tender.

Sports physicals encouraged as student athletes go back to school

Students are heading back to class, and in many cases, back to the field or court. If your children are involved in organized athletics, a sports physical is likely required to ensure that they're safely able to participate in physically demanding activities. More than 38 million teenagers and children in the United States play at least one sport. That's why Saint Joseph Berea, Depart of KentuckyOne Health, wants to help make your young athlete's back to school experience a success, by encouraging a sports physical ting their physical before they start the season," said Landi Cranstoun, MD, KentuckyOne Health Primary Care in Kingston. "Physicals can help identify any high-risk disorder or condition that might affect an athlete's ability to participate in their sport. We also look for any existing injuries they might have, so we can take action to avoid future problems or look for re-Habilitation solutions." Students involved in athletics are encouraged to receive a sports physical at least six weeks prior to the start of the season. This allows the physician time to address past or lingering injuries before the season starts. Regular physical exams for students usually include evaluations and measurements of blood pressure, height and weight, neck and chest, vision, heart and abdomen, lymph nodes, joints and spine, skin and muscles, into account the availability of hard mast as the season progresses.

"Traditionally, when you have good mast years, we usually see a decline in the harvest from the previous year mainly because of a change in feeding habits," Jenkins said. "They're not coming to corn feeders and they're not coming to green fields. They're in the woods.

"I don't know what the mast results are going to show, but in speaking with our staff and seeing for myself in the field, it looked pretty good. We'll see."

Hunters must check the animals they harvest and can do that by phone at 800-245-4263 or online at fw.ky.gov. The telecheck process will include some new questions this year. Hunters checking an antlered deer will be asked to enter the total number of antler points that are at least 1 inch and indicate if the outside antler spread is less than or greater than 11 inches. Those checking an antlerless male will need to distinguish if it is a male fawn (button buck) or if the animal has already dropped its antlers. The additional data will help biologists, Jenkins said.

"What we're looking to do is obtain additional age data, something that indicates how old that harvested animal is," he said. "For all of the population models that we do, we need to know approximate age in the harvest. Additional age data allows us to better predict the standing crop and the age of our herd. That in turn helps us be more efficient managers of the herd."

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife owns, leases or manages more than 80 wildlife management areas across the state for public use. Some require a user permit, hold quota hunts or have special regulations for deer hunting. "We've been able to add a significant amount of acreage in recent years," Beam said. "As a result, hunters now have more high-quality public hunting opportunities across the state."

The department is working with partners to further expand the amount of public land available for hunting. One recent addition is the new 10=2,900-acrè Rockcastle River WMA in eastern Pulaski. Presently, it is closed to the public while Kentucky Fish and Wildlife makes improvements necessary for public use. The Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide, available on the department's website and wherever licenses are sold, is a valuable BRODHEAD DEPOT FESTIVAL resource for hunters. It includes the full list of fall hunting and trapping season dates, summarizes hunting and trapping laws, and provides information about public lands hunting by region, youth hunting opportunities, hunter-education requirements and quota hunts.

There are 30 quota hunts to choose from this year. New this year is an archery and crossbow only quota hunt at Big Rivers WMA and State Forest in Crittenden and Union counties. Hunters may apply for quota hunts via the department's website or by calling 877-598-2401. The application period runs the entire month of September.

Hunters are reminded to ask and obtain permission before hunting on private property and to report game violations by calling 800-25-ALERT. Callers are asked for the county that they are calling about and forwarded to the nearest Kentucky State Police post, which dispatches a Kentucky Fish and Wildlife conservation officer.

"We've had a really wet spring and a wet summer so far with lots of food available. That just equals healthy deer," Jenkins said. "Anecdotally, it looks good across the state. Our data also supports that assertion.

A sports physical, also called a pre-participation exam (PPE), is similar to the doctor's exam that most children experience before heading back to class, but it also addresses injuries, training, nutrition and exercise programs.

and the ears, nose and throat. Medical history, including past and current medications, as well as immunization history, is also reviewed.

While a sports physical will include some aspects of a regular exam, it is not the same since it focuses on fitness as it relates to a sport. During a physical exam, the physician is specifically looking for diseases and injuries that would make it unsafe to participate in sports. The physician will also review the athlete's pulse and blood pressure, heart and lungs, neurological functions such as reflexes, vision and hearing, spinal alignment and joint flexibility, cholesterol, and a genital exam to screen for hernias in males. Additional tests may also be required, depending on the athlete's family medical history.

cleaning up the properties or are waiting on insurance reimbursements to proceed.

Once again, the question of yard sale signs were briefly discussed, after the subject was mentioned on the All-American Club report given by Councilman Wayne Bullock.

The report showed the club picked up a total of 46 bags of trash from July 29-August 12. Mayor Bryant and members of the council praised the work of the All American Club.

'The City of Mount Vernon wishes to commend Wayne Bullock and the All American Club for the great job of helping keep our community clean. In less than two weeks they picked up 46 bags of trash," said Mayor Bryant. "I would like to appeal to all of our citizens to please dispose of all trash in proper containers. That will make our town more attractive and healthier."

Mount Vernon Police Chief Brian Carter reported that the local department answered 368 calls for service in July. Total arrests made were 49.

Fire Chief David Bales reported that the Mount Vernon Fire Department made 39 runs and used 20,400 gallons of water. Mount Vernon Fire and Rescue has made a total of 288 runs this year.

Members of the council also heard a presentation from Dr. John Fox concerning planning for local bicycle paths and walkways. (See related story.)

There's no place like home for Camp AJ counselor

Gadd; Sarah Rockcastle County native, just finished her third year as a camp counselor at Christian Appalachian Project's (CAP) Camp Andrew Jackson where a few years ago she was spending summers as a camper herself. Gadd, a rising junior, will soon return to college in TN to continue her studies in Speech Pathology, but she can never leave behind her experiences at Camp AJ.

"When I was a camper, I always loved coming to Camp AJ," Gadd said. "The counselors always made us feel special. No matter how small our accomplishments or how astronomical. They always made us feel the same, they made us feel loved."

Gadd believes so much in Camp AJ that for two straight years she quit her job so that she could serve a at camp for the entire seven weeks of the season. This ear year, she intentionally at sought a position that would give her the flexibility to be off during the summer. Although she is looking forward to her future, she remembers the impact of camp, having attended for the Girls Only week for ud-

"You have 100% support here whether as a camper or as a counselor," she said. "I love the community. As a counselor, you think you're teaching the campers, but really, you discover, that they are teaching you."

Gadd added with a smile, "The kids teach you not to take yourself so seriously. I love them. You can wake up with a plan and it all goes out the window, but you learn to make the best of it all."

Gadd has also found an-

This Saturday Motorists asked to use caution during Ren 10

The first-ever Lifeline Rockcastle Home Health "Ren 10" 10K/5K run will be this Saturday (Aug. 20) at 8 a.m.

More than 200 runners and walkers will begin their journey at the Renfro Valley Entertainment Center and proceed around Lake Linville before heading back.

Motorists traveling in the area of Lake Linville are asked to proceed slowly and watch closely for pedestrians, and even seek an alternative route if possible between 8 a.m. -9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Proceeds of the event, which is part of Rockcastle Regional Hospital's Countywide Stride race series, benefit the Hope Fund for local cancer patients, established in response to the financial hardships chemotherapy patients experience during treatment. For more information about the race, contact Kayla Rowe at 606-256-7767 or go to www.rockcastleregional.org/ race/august. other connection to CAP's Camp AJ. Each year before the camp season starts, she and her mother have attended the annual women's retreat. Her mother, Amanda Gadd, has been involved with CAP for over 20 years. Amanda was a parent volunteer during her children's preschool years and now serves at the Grateful Threadz thrift store.

"My three children have all been active with CAP since they were little," Amanda explained. Her oldest son started attending CAP's Child Development Center when he was just 3 years old. Sarah started in CAP's Infant and Toddler Program when she was 2 and later attended the preschool program.

This year Amanda's youngest son attended Camp AJ for the first time. "As a mother I like the loving environment at Camp AJ where it's ok to hug a child, give a smile and tell them how important they are," she said.

This was the 13th year CAP has hosted this retreat for women who serve as primary caregivers in their families. Amanda and Sarah have attended for three years, since Sarah graduated from high school. The retreat provides an opportunity for them to deepen their faith as they seek God together and to build friendships with other women. Ladies attended from Rockcastle County, as well as Clay, Jackson, McCreary, and Owsley counties.

"I always come to the retreat before I start the summer because it is a great time to relax. Since I live out of state, my mom and I have made this a tradition," Sarah said. "We love the women's retreat because it gives us special time together."

Amanda added, "I love having a chance to get away with my daughter. It's peaceful at Camp AJ. I like the time we have away together. She has good memories as a child at camp and it's a loving relaxing environment. I love the time with Sarah and the other ladies."

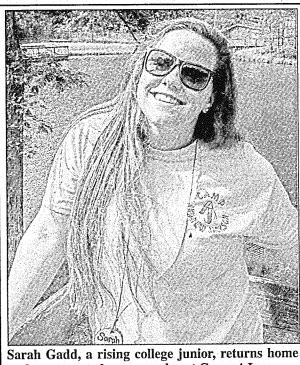

Amanda and Sarah are continuing their connection with Camp AJ and are starting new traditions as well. As Sarah ends her second year as a lead counselor, she will continue to impact the lives of many children as she herself was many years ago when she stepped off that yellow school bus for the first time. "I come back each season because I love it here," Sarah concluded. "My time spent as a participant in CAP's programs really gave me the foundation and the hope to prosper as a kid. I'm so incredibly lucky and blessed to be in a position where I can now give back to the same organization that gave so much to me.

"My time working at Camp AJ has taught me so much about self-awareness, what service truly means, and the importance of contributing to a community. I will always cherish the months that I get to spend in the hills of Eastern Kentucky. No matter where I

Team Abby Scholarship Ride is this Saturday

By: Mike French

The Team Abby Scholarship Bicycle Ride, hosted by Joe Bussell, Jr., will be held Saturday, August 20th with registration from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

The event will start at the Renfro Valley Entertainment Center.

KCEOC Head Start underway

Applications are now being accepted by the Kentucky Community Economic Opportunity Council (KCEOC) for the Early Head Start program in Rockcastle County.

The home based program allows parents to grow along with their early head start child.

Officials say head start is the place for parents and honor the memory of Abby Langford, through a scholarship fund that her mother, Sharon, set up with the Rockcastle County School system.

The ride was created to their birth to three-year-old children to flourish.

According to the group,
the program offers benefits for kids and parents alike.

For kids, there is a safe, quality early education with qualified teachers, healthy meals and enrollment opportunities, for pregnant women.

We're setting the standard for high-quality care.

At Lifeline Rockcastle Home Health, we're proud to have received the 5-Star Rating in Patient Satisfaction and Quality of Patient Care from the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services.

What does this independent assessment mean for our patients? Our agency ranks among the nation's best in patient experience of care measures:

- · Provided care in a gentle, careful and respectful way
- · Explained things clearly, gave prompt advice and listened carefully
- · Discussed medicines, pain and home safety
- Provided overall care ranked 9/10 or 10/10 in patient survey
- · Patients reported they would definitely recommend our service to family and friends

This is a comprehensive assessment of care, and we are honored to achieve this distinction. Our agency also offers skilled nursing services, physical therapy and speech therapy.

Minds in the Middle

Our administrative team would like to thank the staff, students and parents for helping us get off to a great start for the 2016-17 school year. The first few days have gone very well.

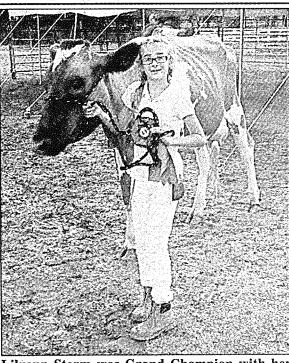

RCMS has welcomed several new staff members this year. We are grateful to have them in our building. Miss Joanie Alexander is teaching Language Arts. Mr. Ty Bottoms is our new Science teacher' and Mrs. Janice Tolle is teaching Social Studies. All three of them have joined our 6thgrade Enterprisers team. Miss Casey Hunt is the new math teacher and Marissa Albright is the new instructional assistant for the 6thgrade Voyagers. We also welcome Dustin Reynolds who will be. working with students in our In-School Suspension program.

Any middle school boy interested in running Cross Country will need to signup in the office and pick up a letter for your parents. Practice will begin on Monday, August 22nd at the high school.

Our kind kids of the week are Valerie Doan who shared with a teammate who lost their snack at break and John Kelley, Ricky Botellos, Justin Wynn and Drew Mink who voluntarily held the doors open for everyone to return to the building after the fire drill. There will be open gym for basketball on Thursday from 3-4:30 for 7th and 8thgrade only.

On Friday, all RCMS students will have the opportunity to visit the traveling Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall in Renfro Valley. We look forward to this opportunity.

We would like to remind our parents that in addition to Minds in the Middle, you may use our school website for information about RCMS. We do periodically post announcements on our website, as well as interesting things that are happening in our school. It also a great way for us to recognize students for the good things they do. Our Facebook page is another way you can keep up with what is happening.

Yards to Paradise

Plants that look attractive and flower with little care, and return year after year. What you are thinking of are the perennials. Annuals and biennials can look super as well, but require more effort. Let us discuss selecting the right perennials for your spot. And we will also talk about how to make some perennial beds if you don't have many appropriate spots for planting things. Allow perennials to grow with only minimal care, such as weeding or using pre-emergent herbicides.

Perennials are often divided into sun-loving species and shade-loving kinds. Other divisions would be dry versus wet soil (clay or other poorly draining conditions). How tall are they. and how often will they need dividing before getting too crowded and declining? Let us pick some of these situations and find some excellent flowers and foliage that will give pleasing repletely 'deer proof' plant if a deer is hungry enough) include hellebores, nepeta (catmint), rudbeckia, digitalis, daffodills, lavender, amsonia, butterfly bushes, alliums (onions), euphorbias, geraniums, Russian sage, and stachys (lamb's ears).

To attract bees and butterflies and other pollinating insects, here are a few of the many perennials that will work. Agastache, asclepias, asters, buddleas, caryopteris, echinaceas, echinops, eupatoriums, heleniums, geums, leucanthemums, lupines, monardas, salvias, sedums, trumpet vines and wisterias.

For the rock garden and for arid conditions, here are some suggestions: yarrow, globe thistle, ice plant, sunflowers, yucca, lantana, balloon flower, catmint, creeping thyme, oregano, sedums and sempervirens! A good, but expensive, source of plants for dry sandy conditions is High Country Gardens, a mailorder plant nursery that woody shrub that blooms and bears fruit such as blueberries and cranberries, or is edible such as horseradish or rhubarb, you can double up and get the benefits of blooming perennials, plus some delicious berries or plants.

Finding the right perennial for your spot, of creating the right spot for the perennials you wish to grow, should be the ticket to a winning garden with lots of pretty flowering plants that keep on coming year after year.

Cynthia Warner, KET Education Consultant, was the guest speaker at the August 11th meeting of the Rockcastle Kiwanis Club. She shared the variety of resources offered by KET to early childhood programs, K-12 education and adult education. For more information, visit www.ket.org/education/. Pictured are Kiwanis Club Board Member Tarina Helton, KET Education Consultant Cynthia Warner and Kiwanis Club Secretary Jamie Lear.

With the proceeds from the annual golf scramble, Rockcastle Kiwanis Club was able to donate $200 to each of our local elementary school Family Resource Centers to be used toward the purchase of snack pack items that are sent home with children who may need extra food over the weekend. Pictured are Kayla Rowe, Rockcastle Kiwanis Treasurer, with Mt. Vernon Elementary Family Resource Center Coordinator Regina Hull-Brown. An additional $200 was donated to Rockcastle County High School Key Club for the purchase of school supplies that will be made available to RCHS students free of charge.

For hot sunny locations, roadsides or raised beds in full sunshine, here are suggestions. For wet sites with poor drainage, try hardy hibiscus, Baby Joe joe-pye weed, many of the daylilies, some sedums such as "Autumn Joy" or "Brilliant", swamp milkweed (butterfly milkweed), and amsonia. For the sunny location that drains well, there are so many; so, pick your favorites. Daylilies, cone flowers, bee balm, veronica, salvia, some coral bells, yarrow, rudbeckia (Black-eyed-Susans), asters, daisies, mums, coreopsis, dianthus and phlox are some options.

For part-shade and dappled shade locations here are some options: hellebores, astilbe, anemone, epimediums, coral bells, columbine, brunnera, geraniums, hosta, ligularia and lupines. Many plants will live in deep shade, but not thrive as well as they would in dappled shade. Hosta, hellebores, green and yellow leaved coral bells, tiarella, galium, lamium, bleeding hearts and Monroe's White monkey grass, and Japenese forest grass.

Deer resistant perennials (there's probably no com-ships live plants from New Mexico.

If you have a special flower which you want to grow, then sometimes you have to create the conditions that it likes in order to succeed. If you have no shade, maybe you can plant a tree in the middle of a raised bed, and plant shade lovers underneath it. If you love a tall plant, maybe you can put it against a fence, lattice or wall, and put one or more layers of smaller plants in front of it. If your soil won't drain, a raised bed will allow you to grow many things you otherwise would have difficulty with. Even the selection of the soil to go in such a bed can help with success.

And, if you want color that doesn't require a lot of attention, try Stella daylilies and perhaps Happy Returns, Going Bananas, and Chicago Apache. Spiderwort and liriope (monkey grass) are also goof-proof perennials.

I find for an evergreen perennial, hellebores are hard to beat, even growing OK in all but boggy conditions.

Gardeners both young and old are doing more edible gardening, so if you can find a perennial or dwarf

Agricultural News

By: Warden Alexander, FSA Director

FSA farm+, FSA's Customer Self-Service Portal

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) has launched a new tool to provide farmers and ranchers with remote access to their personal farm information using their home computers. Farmers and ranchers can now view, print or export their personal farm data all without visiting an FSA county office.

The program, known as FSAfarm+, provides you with secure access to view your personal FSA data, such as base and yields, Conservation Reserve Program data, other conservation program acreage, Highly Erodible Land Conservation and Wetland Conservation status information, field boundaries, farm imagery, name and address details, contact information and membership interest and shares in the operation. This data will be available in real time, at no cost to the producer and allow operators and owners to export and print farm records, including maps. Producers also can electronically share their data with a crop insurance agent from their own personal computer.

Farm operators and owners first will need "Lével 2 eAuthentication" to access the webportal. This level of security ensures that personal information is protected for each user. Level 2 access can be obtained by going to www.eauth.usda.gov, completing the required information and then visiting your local FSA office to finalize access.

For more information on FSAfarm+, the customer self-service portal, contact your local FSA office. To find your local FSA county office, click http:// offices.usda.gov.
